Hospital-Based Health Technology Assessment Laura Sampietro-Colom, Janet Martin, 2017-01-23 A timely work describing how localized hospital based health technology assessment (HB-HTA) complements general arms length HTA agency efforts and what has been the collective global impact of HB-HTA across the globe. While HB-HTA has gained significant momentum over the past few years, expertise in the field and information on the operation and organization of HB-HTA has been scattered. This book serves to bring this information together to inform those who are currently working in the field of HTA at the hospital, regional, national or global level. In addition, this book is intended for decision makers and policy makers with a stake in determining the uptake and decommissioning of new and established technologies in the hospital setting. HTA has traditionally been performed at the National/Regional level by HTA Agencies typically linked to governments. Yet hospitals are the main entry door for most health technologies. HTs. Hospital decision makers must undertake multiple high stakes investment and disinvestment decisions annually for innovative HTs usually without adequate information. Despite the existence of arms length HTA Agencies, inadequate information is available to hospital decision makers either because relevant HTA reports are not yet released at the time of entry of new technologies to the field or because even when the report exists, the information contained is insufficient to clarify the contextualized informational needs of hospital decision makers. Therefore, there has recently been a rising trend toward hospital based HTA units and programs. These units/programs complement the work of National/Regional HTA Agencies by providing the key and relevant evidence needed by hospital decision makers in their specific hospital context and within required decision making timelines. The emergence of HB-HTA is creating a comprehensive HTA ecosystem across health care levels which creates better bridges for knowledge translation through relevance and timeliness.

Forecasting and Management of Technology Alan L. Porter, Scott W. Cunningham, Jerry Banks, A. Thomas Roper, Thomas W. Mason, Frederick A. Rossini, 2011-07-12. Published in 1991, the first edition of Forecasting and Management of Technology was one of the leading handful of books to deal with the topic of forecasting of technology and technology management as this discipline was emerging. The new revised edition of this book will build on this knowledge in the context of business organizations that now place a greater emphasis on technology to stay on the cutting edge of development. The scope of this edition has broadened to include management of technology content that is relevant to now to executives in organizations while updating and strengthening the technology forecasting and analysis content that the first edition is reputed for. Updated by the original author team plus new author Scott Cunningham, the book takes into account what the authors see as the innovations to technology management in the last 17 years: the Internet, the greater focus on group decision making including process management and mechanism design, and desktop software that has transformed the analytical capabilities of technology managers. Included in this book will be 5 case studies from various industries that show how technology management is applied in the real world.

Valuing Technology Janice McLaughlin, Paul Rosen, David Skinner, Andrew Webster, 2002-01-22. How does new information technology become part of the fabric of organisational life? Drawing on insights from social studies of technology, gender studies and the sociology of consumption, Valuing Technology opens up new directions in the analysis of sociotechnical change within organisations. Based on a major research project focused upon the introduction of management of information systems in health, higher education and retailing, it explores the active role of end users in innovation. This book argues that it is through the often difficult engagement between users and technology that new computer systems come to gain value within organisations. Key themes developed through analysis of case studies include the valuing of technology via the on-going construction of needs, uses and utilities, occupational identities, organisational inequalities and technological change, the gendering of technological and organisational change, interpretive flexibility and the stabilisation of technological systems and their incorporation into the lives of people in organisations. A stimulating blend of the theoretical and substantive, this book demands a radical redefinition of technology acquisition. Its highly original approach makes Valuing Technology essential reading for students, lecturers and researchers within the fields of organisation studies and the sociology of technology.
