Teleological Realism Mind Agency And Explanation:

Teleological Realism Scott Robert Sehon, 2005 A non reductionist account of mind and agency claiming that common sense psychological explanations are teleological and not causal Using the language of common sense psychology CSP we explain human behavior by citing its reason or purpose and this is central to our understanding of human beings as agents On the other hand since human beings are physical objects human behavior should also be explicable in the language of physical science in which causal accounts cast human beings as collections of physical particles CSP talk of mind and agency however does not seem to mesh well with the language of physical science In Teleological Realism Scott Sehon argues that CSP explanations are not causal but teleological that they cite the purpose or goal of the behavior in question rather than an antecedent state that caused the behavior CSP explanations of behavior Sehon claims are answering a question different from that answered by physical science explanations and accordingly CSP explanations and physical science explanations are independent of one another Common sense facts about mind and agency can thus be independent of the physical facts about human beings and contrary to the views of most philosophers of mind in recent decades common sense psychology will not be subsumed by physical science Sehon defends his non reductionist account of mind and agency in clear and nontechnical language He carefully distinguishes his view from forms of strong naturalism that would seem to preclude it And he evaluates key objections to teleological realism including those posed by Donald Davidson s influential article Actions Reasons and Causes and some put forth by more recent proponents of causal theories of action CSP Sehon argues has a different realm than does physical science the normative notions that are central to CSP are not reducible to physical facts and laws

Understanding Human Agency Erasmus Mayr, 2011-09-15 How can we be active agents when processes in the world are explicable by the laws of natural science Erasmus Mayr explores this deep running tension in our self understanding and develops a new agent causal solution to the conflict He argues that actions explained by aims and reasons are compatible with a scientific view of the universe

Understanding Mental Causation Andrea White, 2024-12-17 Understanding Mental Causation proposes a new non relational theory of mental causation Andrea White believes that contemporary philosophy of mind labours under a misapprehension of what mental causation is supposed to be This volume explains where the leading theories go astray and how the new theory proposed solves critical problems for philosophers of mind and action Ordinary experience suggests that what we do with our bodies causally depends somehow on what is going on in our minds However the problem of how to understand the causal relationship between mind and body remains Contemporary philosophy of mind is shaped by the question how is it possible for the mental to causally interact with the physical Mental causation is often presented as a cause effect relation between mental and physical entities This understanding of mental causation is widely endorsed because it seems like a straightforward explanation of what is going on when people act intentionally Desires and beliefs are seen as causes of the actions they explain entailing the existence of causal relations between mental items and physical events White calls this the causalist view of intentional action This view is not universally accepted The non causalist view denies that intentional action entails the existence of causal relations between mental items and physical events However non causalists reach this conclusion by arguing that explanations of intentional actions which cite beliefs or desires are not usually causal explanations at all White presents a theory of intentional action that falls between the causalist and non causalist views She rejects the idea that as a cause is how we should understand the place of mentality in intentional action Concepts like belief desire and intention do not refer to items which can stand in causal relations to actions or physical events However like causalists she holds that explanations of intentional actions which cite the agent's thoughts do give causal information This intermediary view demands a new theory about the causation that is on display when human beings act intentionally one that does not reduce mental causation to a relation between mental items and physical events Orthodox theories of causation inspired by David Hume assume that causation is always a relation between events Therefore the causation demonstrated in intentional action must be a relation because all causation is and will count as mental causation if and only if at least one of the terms of that relation is a mental entity White challenges this orthodoxy by presenting her own non relational theory of causation Denying causation is always a relation she holds instead that causation is a general type of process in which substances engage and that exercising a causal power is to engage in a process White shows how this novel theory can be used to provide a better understanding of intentional action and the mental causation associated with it She suggests that to act intentionally is to engage in a process and as such to exercise a power but a power of a special sort The power to act intentionally is a power to structure one's own activities so that they demonstrate a pattern a pattern which is only revealed by attributing mental states to the agent So when an agent acts intentionally they engage in the process of mental causation because the agent is manifesting a special power to organise their activities into a pattern that can be made sense of by appeal to mental concepts Broadening our understanding of causation and more specifically incorporating the concepts power and process opens up new ways of understanding intentional action and mental causation In Understanding Mental Causation White presents a compelling new account in this key area of philosophy of mind

Explanation in Action Theory and Historiography Gunnar Schumann, 2019-05-29 Is the appropriate form of human action explanation causal or rather teleological While this is a central question in analytic philosophy of action it also has implications for questions about the differences between methods of explanation in the sciences on the one hand and in the humanities and the social sciences on the other Additionally this question bears on the problem of the appropriate form of explanations of past human actions and therefore it is prominently discussed by analytic philosophers of historiography This volume brings together causalists and anti causalists to address enduring philosophical questions at the heart of this debate as well as their implications for the practice of historiography Part I considers the quarrel between causalism and anti causalism in recent developments in the philosophy of action Part II presents papers by causalists and anti causalists that are more narrowly focused on the philosophy of historiography Brain-Computer Interfaces and the Philosophy of Mind and Action Sebastian Drosselmeier,2025-06-30 How can brain computer interfaces enhance our understanding of human agency and mentality By exploring how these interfaces enable people to perform intentional actions seemingly merely with their thoughts Drosselmeier delves into three core metaphysical issues in the philosophy of mind agency mental causation and the mind brain relationship He argues that brain computer interfaces provide a unique perspective on these issues demonstrating both the irreducible higher level nature of human thought and action and their continuity with lower level scientific phenomena This dual perspective helps bridge the apparent gap between our commonsense psychological understanding of mind and action and a scientific worldview The relevance of this work extends beyond theoretical philosophy providing practical implications for the development and ethical considerations of emerging neurotechnologies This publication is essential for scholars and researchers in philosophy cognitive science and neuroscience offering a comprehensive framework that integrates philosophical inquiry with cutting edge scientific advancements Reasons and Purposes G. F. Schueler,2003-01-16 People do things for reasons But philosophers have disagreed sharply about how reasons explanations of actions actually work and hence about their implications for human freedom and autonomy The dominant view in contemporary philosophy is the Humean idea that the beliefs and desires that constitute our reasons for acting simply cause us to act as we do Fred Schueler seeks to replace such causal views arguing that they leave out two essential elements of these explanations Reasons explanations are inherently teleological in the sense that the agent s reasons always explain the purpose for which he acted They are also inherently normative since it is always possible that an agent s reasons for doing something are not good reasons Schueler argues that causal accounts of reasons explanations make no sense of either of these features he argues instead for an account based on practical deliberation our ability to evaluate the reasons we accept Free Will and Action Explanation Scott Sehon,2016-04-29 Do we have free will and moral responsibility Is free will compatible with determinism Scott Sehon argues that we can make progress on these questions by focusing on an underlying issue the nature of action explanation When a person acts or does something on purpose we explain the behavior by citing the agent s reasons The dominant view in philosophy of mind has been to construe such explanations as a species of causal explanation Part I of the book proposes and defends a non causal account of action and agency according to which reason explanation of human behavior is irreducibly teleological rather than causal Part II applies the teleological account of action to free will and responsibility arguing that the free actions the ones for which we are directly responsible are the goal directed actions the actions that are teleologically explicable in terms of our reasons It is then argued that this non causal account of action undermines the appeal of incompatibilist arguments arguments attempting to show that free will is not compatible with determinism Beyond this Sehon argues that the non causal compatibilist account works well in practice it is in accord with our clear intuitions about cases and it both explains and provides guidance in the cases where our intuitions are murkier Neo-Aristotelian Perspectives in Metaphysics Daniel D. Novotný, Lukáš Novák, 2014-04-16 This volume re-examines some of the major themes at the intersection of traditional and contemporary metaphysics. The book uses as a point of departure Francisco Suárez's Metaphysical Disputations published in 1597. Minimalist metaphysics in empiricist/pragmatist clothing have today become mainstream in analytic philosophy. Independently of this development, the progress of scholarship in ancient and medieval philosophy makes clear that traditional forms of metaphysics have affinities with some of the streams in contemporary analytic metaphysics. The book brings together leading contemporary metaphysicians to investigate the viability of a neo-Aristotelian metaphysics.

Luck's Mischief Ishtiyaque Haji, 2016-01-14 Something is subject to luck if it is beyond our control. In Luck's Mischief Haji argues that owing frequently to precluding our being able to otherwise, luck limits both the range of what is morally obligatory for us and things for which we are morally responsible. Philosophy of History Jouni-Matti Kuukkanen, 2020-11-12 With a recent surge of interest in the field, a volume taking stock of important theoretical shifts in the philosophy of history is greatly needed. A Philosophy of History fills this gap by weaving together a range of perspectives on the field which finds itself at a crossroads and asks where it is headed in the 21st century. The book takes a concerted effort to go beyond the customary three-fold distinction between the speculative, analytic, and narrativist approaches in philosophy of history. It considers what comes after the enduring narrativist turn. Chapters incorporate cutting-edge discussions on the relevance of contemporary political phenomena such as populism, the relation between science and history, pragmatism, and the paradigmatic challenge of the Anthropocene. It also re-evaluates the continued relevance of major historical thinkers like Leibniz and R. G. Collingwood and the endlessly fresh insights they can offer to key debates in the field today. Philosophy of History is a much-needed reappraisal of the philosophy and theory of history, offering an up-to-date overview of major developments in the field and addressing the pressing questions of where to go next in a post-analytical, post-narrativist world.
