The American Journal of Occupational Therapy , 1996 The Kawa Model Michael K. Iwama, 2006-07-25 A landmark publication in occupational therapy and a significant contribution to the rehabilitation theory literature The Kawa Model presents a new conceptual model of practice that differs from contemporary theories in regard to origin East Asia underlying philosophical base East Asia being heavily infused with a natural ecological holistic world view and relational structure The model is based on the metaphor of nature a river that stands for the meanings of life Because of the familiarity of the metaphor to both therapists and clients alike the Kawa Model is relatively easy to comprehend remarkably simple yet comprehensive and effective Unlike other models it was raised from clinical practice by practitioners through a process of qualitative research methods It is the first conceptual model and substantial theoretical work of occupational therapy from outside of the Western world A must read for all students of occupational therapy The first substantial work in occupational therapy from outside of the Western world Introduces an Eastern perspective on matters of theory and culture in occupational therapy Eight case studies four from Western practice contexts and four from the East Developed by clinicians and practitioners for their peers Questions the cultural boundaries of occupational therapy its knowledge epistemology theory and practice It puts the reader in touch with the cultural nature of self client and profession Enables readers to develop critical analysis skills for examining matters of theory and culture as opposed to learning theory as recipes
