Anthropologists and the Rediscovery of America, 1886-1965

John S. Gilkeson, 2010-09-20 This book examines the intersection of cultural anthropology and American cultural nationalism from 1886 when Franz Boas left Germany for the United States until 1965 when the National Endowment for the Humanities was established Five chapters trace the development within academic anthropology of the concepts of culture social class national character value and civilization and their dissemination to non anthropologists As Americans came to think of culture anthropologically as a complex whole far broader and more inclusive than Matthew Arnold s the best which has been thought and said so too did they come to see American communities as stratified into social classes distinguished by their subcultures to attribute the making of the American character to socialization rather than birth to locate the distinctiveness of American culture in its unconscious canons of choice and to view American culture and civilization in a global perspective

Of States and Cities Peter Marcuse, Ronald van Kempen, 2002 The nature and effects of globalization are coming under critical scrutiny across all continents This book focuses on one aspect the globalization of cities It examines the claim that the state is powerless to influence events and that history geography and culture have become irrelevant in the worldwide trend towards a uniform urban model a model which features increased segregation decline of the central city and social polarization The international team of contributors is well placed to put these claims in perspective Drawing on their experiences of cities as diverse as New York and Warsaw Istanbul and Sao Paulo they demonstrate that states and cities have adopted widely varying approaches to the advent of globalization and that its impact has been constrained by each city s history physical layout location environment role in the international economy and demographic composition The diversity of understanding the functioning of today's world Indian Cities Ecological Perspectives V. K. Tewari, Jay A. Weinstein, V. L. S. Prakasa Rao, The City after Chinese New Towns Michele Bonino, Francesca Governa, Maria Paola Repellino, Angelo Sampieri, 2019-03-04 By 2020 some 400 Chinese New Towns will have been built representing an unprecedented urban growth While some of these massive developments are still empty today others have been rather successful The substantial effort on the part of the Chinese government is to absorb up to 250 million people chiefly migrants from the rural parts of the country Unlike in Europe and North America where new towns grew in accordance to the local industries these new Chinese cities are mostly built to the point of near completion before introducing people The interdisciplinary publication written by architects planners and geographers explores the new urbanistic phenomenon of the Chinese New Town Especially commissioned photographs and maps illustrate many examples of these new settlements Community Chest , Voluntary contributions by private citizens and corporations in amounts ranging from a few coins to millions of dollars are a major factor in the maintenance of the American way of life It is difficult to imagine the consequences if this source of support for the work of religious bodies health and welfare agencies and educational and research institutions were materially reduced This case study focused on Indianapolis examines a critical mass fund raising and giving program Community chests in many communities evolved into the present day United Way In design scope and detail this study was without precedent when it was initially published in the 1950s But Community Chest is more than an examination of local problems of fund raising It also makes a decisive contribution to knowledge of philanthropic practice that is of general relevance to the social sciences The book asks and seeks answers to the most ticklish issues of philanthropic fund raising What may agencies expect in contributions from different social segments How does one begin to estimate the need for philanthropic dollars in a given community How can the public guard the interests of both ultimate recipients of assistance and donors In short what elements are crucial to success or failure in financing voluntary agencies not merely in terms of money but with full regard for the needs and potentials of citizens and the community as a whole Sociologists welfare personnel and professionals involved in financial development will find in this book an extraordinary amount of material both factual and interpretive suggesting new approaches to the perplexing problems of community fund raising A new introduction prepared by Carl Milofsky is a fascinating study of the tensions involved in the selection of the senior author John R Seeley and of the critical response to this controversial study This new material itself uniquely contributes to the sociology of knowledge
