A Critical Psychology of the Postcolonial Derek Hook, 2012-03-15 An oft neglected element of postcolonial thought is the explicitly psychological dimension of many of its foundational texts. This unprecedented volume explores the relation between these two disciplines by treating the work of a variety of anti colonial authors as serious psychological contributions to the theorization of racism and oppression. This approach demonstrates the pertinence of postcolonial thought for critical social psychology and opens up novel perspectives on a variety of key topics in social psychology. These include the psychology of embodiment and racialization, resistance strategies to oppression, extra discursive facets of racism, the unconscious dimension of stereotypes, the intersection of psychological and symbolic modalities of power. In addition the book makes a distinctive contribution to the field of postcolonial studies by virtue of its eclectic combination of authors drawn from anti apartheid psychoanalytic and critical social theory traditions including Homi Bhabha, Steve Biko, J M Coetzee, Frantz Fanon, Julia Kristeva, Chabani Manganyi and Slavoj Žižek. The South African focus serves to emphasize the ongoing historical importance of the anti apartheid struggle for today's globalized world. A Critical Psychology of the Postcolonial is an invaluable text for social psychology and sociology students enrolled in courses on racism or cultural studies. It will also appeal to postgraduates, academics and anyone interested in psychoanalysis in relation to societal and political issues.

Power, Politics and the Emotions Shona Hunter,2015-06-05 How can we rethink ideas of policy failure to consider its paradoxes and contradictions as a starting point for more hopeful democratic encounters Offering a provocative and innovative theorisation of governance as relational politics the central argument of Power Politics and the Emotions is that there are sets of affective dynamics which complicate the already materially and symbolically contested terrain of policy making This relational politics is Shona Hunter s starting point for a more hopeful but realistic understanding of the limits and possibilities enacted through contemporary governing processes Through this idea Hunter prioritises the everyday lived enactments of policy as a means to understand the state as a more differentiated and changeable entity than is often allowed for in current critiques of neoliberalism But Hunter reminds us that focusing on lived realities demands a melancholic confrontation with pain and the risks of social and physical death and violence lived through the contemporary neoliberal state This is a state characterised by the ascendancy of neoliberal whiteness a state where no one is innocent and we are all responsible for the multiple intersecting exclusionary practices creating its unequal social orderings The only way to struggle through the central paradox of governance to produce something different is to accept this troubling interdependence between resistance and reproduction and between hope and loss Analysing the everyday processes of this relational politics through original empirical studies in health social care and education the book develops an innovative interdisciplinary theoretical synthesis which engages with and extends work in political science cultural theory critical race and feminist analysis critical psychoanalysis and post material sociology
