The Routledge Handbook of Poverty in the United States Stephen Haymes,Maria

Vidal de Haymes, Reuben Miller, 2014-12-17 In the United States the causes and even the meanings of poverty are disconnected from the causes and meanings of global poverty The Routledge Handbook of Poverty in the United States provides an authoritative overview of the relationship of poverty with the rise of neoliberal capitalism in the context of globalization Reorienting its national economy towards a global logic US domestic policies have promoted a market based strategy of economic development and growth as the obvious solution to alleviating poverty affecting approaches to the problem discursively politically economically culturally and experientially However the handbook explores how rather than alleviating poverty it has instead exacerbated poverty and pre existing inequalities privatizing the services of social welfare and educational institutions transforming the state from a benevolent to a punitive state and criminalizing poor women racial and ethnic minorities and immigrants Key issues examined by the international selection of leading scholars in this volume include income distribution employment health hunger housing and urbanization With parts focusing on the lived experience of the poor social justice and human rights frameworks as opposed to welfare rights models and the role of helping professions such as social work health and education this comprehensive handbook is a vital reference for anyone working with those in poverty whether directly or at a macro level

Institutional Entrepreneurship and Policy Change

Caner Bakir, Darryl S. L. Jarvis, 2018-02-19 This book is about the role of agents in policy and institutional change. It draws on cross country case studies. The focus on agency has been an important development enabling researchers to better reveal the causal mechanisms generating institutional change i.e. how institutional change actually takes place. However, past research has generally been limited to specific intellectual silos or scholarly domains of inquiry. Policy scholars, for example, have tended to focus on the various mechanisms and levels at which agency operates, drawing on institutionalist perspectives but not always actively contributing to institutionalist theory. Institutional perspectives, by contrast, have tended to operate at macro levels of enquiry, embracing the ontological primacy of institutions in processes of isomorphism but not necessarily contributing to or embracing policy perspectives that engage in more granular analyses of policy making processes, implementation and the instantiation of institutional and policy change. Despite the obvious complementarities of these two intellectual traditions, it is surprising how little collaborative work or indeed cross fertilization of theory and analytical design has occurred. The core novelty of this volume is thus its focus on agential actors within institutional settings and processes of entrepreneurship that facilitate isomorphism and policy change. The book's theoretical framework is grounded in variants of institutional theory, especially historical sociological and organisational institutionalism and policy entrepreneurship literature. The overall conclusion is that both institutionalists and public policy scholars have largely overlooked the importance of complex interactions between interdependent structures, institutions and agents in processes of institutional and policy change.

Rethinking Institutions, Processes and Development in Africa Ernest Aniche, Toyin Falola, 2021-10-18 African scholarship concerning the nexus between institutions and development is still dominated by the economic perspective of development despite the emergence of the humanistic perspective of development. The humanistic perspective is a more embracing, encompassing and comprehensive view of development than its economic counterpart and offers a better explanation of the African situation. It is essential to examine the relationships between democratic political institutions and human development. This collection examines democratic institutions and processes in post-independence Africa. The contributors examine the political institutional processes in post-colonial Africa, evaluating the workings of institutions such as education, bureaucracy, interest groups, trade unions and problems of enforcements in Africa. It also discusses the relevance of creative arts for political socialization as well as the role effects of privatization on service delivery in contemporary African societies.
