Determinants of Growth Spells Mr.Charalambos G.

Tsangarides,2012-09-01 Do growth spells in Africa end because of bad realizations of the same factors that influence growth spells in the rest of the world or because of different factors altogether To answer this question we examine determinants of growth spells in Africa and the rest of the world using Bayesian Mode Averaging techniques for proportional hazards models We define growth spells as periods of sustained growth episodes between growth accelerations and decelerations and then relate the probability that a growth spell ends to various determinants including exogenous shocks physical and human capital macroeconomic policy and sociopolitical factors Our analysis suggests that determinants of growth spells in Africa are different from those in the rest of the world The majority of the identified robust determinants have a distinct impact in only one of the two samples initial income terms of trade exchange rate undervaluation and inflation influence spells only in the world sample while openness and droughts seem to only affect Africa In addition a few common determinants proxies for human and physical capital and changes in the world interest rate have very different marginal effects in the two samples

Meritocracy and Economic Inequality

Kenneth Arrow,Samuel Bowles,Steven N. Durlauf,2018-06-26 Most Americans strongly favor equality of opportunity if not outcome but many are weary of poverty s seeming immunity to public policy This helps to explain the recent attention paid to cultural and genetic explanations of persistent poverty including claims that economic inequality is a function of intellectual ability as well as more subtle depictions of the United States as a meritocracy where barriers to achievement are personal either voluntary or inherited rather than systemic This volume of original essays by luminaries in the economic social and biological sciences however confirms mounting evidence that the connection between intelligence and inequality is surprisingly weak and demonstrates that targeted educational and economic reforms can reduce the income gap and improve the country s aggregate productivity and economic well being It also offers a novel agenda of equal access to valuable associations Amartya Sen John Roemer Robert M Hauser Glenn Loury Orley Ashenfelter and others sift and analyze the latest arguments and quantitative findings on equality in order to explain how merit is and should be defined how economic rewards are distributed and how patterns of economic success persist across generations Moving well beyond exploration they draw specific conclusions that are bold yet empirically grounded finding that schooling improves occupational success in ways unrelated to cognitive ability that IQ is not a strong independent predictor of economic success and that people s associations their neighborhoods working groups and other social ties significantly explain many of the poverty traps we observe The optimistic message of this beautifully edited book is that important violations of equality of opportunity do exist but can be attenuated by policies that will serve the general economy Policy makers will read with interest concrete suggestions for crafting economically beneficial anti discrimination measures enhancing educational and associational opportunity and centering economic reforms in community based institutions Here is an example of some of our most brilliant social thinkers using the most advanced techniques that their disciplines have to offer to tackle an issue of great social importance
