A Study of the Circulation of Ceramics in Cyprus from the 3rd Century BC to the 3rd Century AD John Lund, 2015-10-26 This is the first monograph devoted solely to the ceramics of Cyprus in the Hellenistic and Roman Periods The island was by then no longer divided into kingdoms but unified politically first under Ptolemaic Egypt and later as a province in the Roman Empire Submission to foreign rule was previously thought to have diluted if not obliterated the time honoured distinctive Cypriot character The ceramic evidence suggests otherwise The distribution of local and imported pottery in Cyprus points to the existence of several regional exchange networks a division that also seems reflected by other evidence The similarities in material culture exchange patterns and preferential practices are suggestive of a certain level of regional collective self awareness From the 1st century BC onwards Cyprus became increasingly engulfed by mass produced and standardized ceramic fine wares which seem ultimately to have put many of the indigenous makers of similar products out of business or forced them to modify their output Also the ceramic record gradually became less diverse during the Roman Period than before developments which we today might be inclined to view as symptoms of an early form of globalisation

Tombes D'Époque Parthe Remy Boucharlat, E. Haerinck, 2011-07-22 Among the hundred or so tombs of post Alexander date excavated by Roman Ghirshman between 1947 and 1952 on the mound of the Ville des Artisans at Susa six are remarkable for their construction and burial contents Shortly before his death in 1979 Ghirshman director of the French Mission de Suse from 1946 until 1968 had started to write up his final report Based on his notes the authors have engaged to publish these tombs together with the original plans drawings and photographs of the burial goods The grave contents consisted mainly of pottery but also included glass vessels figurines metal objects and other small finds The study of the material from these large vaulted subterranean structures indicates that they were most likely intended as family tombs thus remaining in use for several decades and should be dated in the first or second century AD Similar tombs are known at other sites in the region of Susa and even in Mesopotamia e g at Seleucia on the Tigris A synthesis of the evolution in tomb architecture and typology as well as the burial practices for the whole site of Susa between the Seleucid and early Sasanian periods third century BC to third century AD is also presented based on the short reports and unpublished excavation notes of Ghirshman in addition to unpublished reports by his predecessors at the site
