Brownell,1900-01-01 More than that of any other modern people French art is a national expression It epitomizes very definitely the national sthetic judgment and feeling and if its manifestations are even more varied than are elsewhere to be met with they share a certain character that is very salient Of almost any French picture or statue of any modern epoch one s first thought is that it is French The national quite overshadows the personal quality In the field of the fine arts as in nearly every other in which the French genius shows itself the results are evident of an intellectual co operation which insures the development of a common standard and tends to subordinate idiosyncrasy The fine arts as well as every other department of mental activity reveal the effect of that social instinct which is so much more powerful in France than it is anywhere else or has ever been elsewhere except possibly in the case of the Athenian republic Add to this influence that of the intellectual as distinguished from the sensuous instinct and one has I think the key to this salient characteristic of French art which strikes one so sharply and always as so plainly French As one walks through the French rooms at the Louvre through the galleries of the Luxembourg through the unending rooms of the Salon he is impressed by the splendid competence everywhere displayed the high standard of culture universally attested by the overwhelming evidence that France stands at the head of the modern world sthetically but not less I think does one feel the absence of imagination opportunity of spirituality of poetry in a word The French themselves feel something of this At the great Exposition of 1889 no pictures were so much admired by them as the English in which appeared even to an excessive degree just the qualities in which French art is lacking and which less than those of any other school showed traces of the now all but universal influence of French art The most distinct and durable impression left by any exhibition of French pictures is that the French sthetic genius is at once admirably artistic and extremely little poetic French Art: Classic and Contemporary Painting and Sculpture W. C. Brownell,2019-12-24 In

French Art Classic and Contemporary Painting and Sculpture W C Brownell meticulously navigates the evolution of French artistic expression from its classical roots to contemporary innovations The book offers an intricate analysis interwoven with keen observations on stylistic transitions societal influences and the burgeoning dynamics of artistic movements Brownell s proficient prose not only presents a thorough historical overview but also incorporates critical interpretations making the works of celebrated artists like Delacroix and C zanne accessible and relatable for modern audiences His insightful exploration positions French art within the broader narrative of European cultural history underscoring its pivotal role in shaping artistic norms and practices W C Brownell an esteemed critic and scholar of art draws upon his deep seated passion for aesthetics and history cultivated through his extensive travel and engagement with European art His first hand experiences in galleries and studios coupled with a profound understanding of art criticism offer readers a unique lens through which to view the French art landscape This intellectual backdrop along with Brownell s academic acumen informs the nuanced critiques and analyses presented in this volume French Art Classic and Contemporary Painting and Sculpture is
