The Constitution Of South Africa From A Gender Perspective:

The Constitution of South Africa from a Gender Perspective Sandra Liebenberg, 1995 Based on the proceedings of a conference held in Cape Town 1995 The Gender of Constitutional Jurisprudence Beverley Baines, Ruth Rubio-Marin, 2005 To explain how constitutions shape and are shaped by women's lives the contributors to this volume examine constitutional cases pertaining to women in twelve countries Analyzing jurisprudence about reproductive sexual familial socio economic and democratic rights they focus constructively on women's claims to equality asking who makes these claims what constitutional rights inform them how they have evolved what arguments work in defending them and how they relate to other national issues Their findings reveal significant similarities in outcomes and in reasoning about women's constitutional rights in these twelve countries challenging the tradition of distinguishing constitutional jurisprudence depending on whether the country has a written or unwritten constitution subscribes to civil or common law is a federal or unitary state limits constitutional adjudication to the public domain accords international norms binding or subject to incorporation force or relies on a specialized or general court to adjudicate constitutional matters Socio-economic Rights in South Africa Danie Brand, Christof H. Heyns, 2005 Developing the Right to Social Security - A Gender Perspective Beth Goldblatt, 2016-06-10 The right to social security found in international law and in the constitutions of many nations contributes to the alleviation of poverty globally Social security and its articulation as a human right have received increased attention in recent years both in response to austerity cuts to welfare in developed countries and as a means of lifting millions out of poverty in developing countries Women disproportionately affected by poverty in all parts of the world stand to gain from a right to social security that takes cognisance of gender discrimination and disadvantage This book interprets and redefines the right to social security from a gender perspective Drawing on feminist theory the book formulates a conceptual approach and a set of principles for a substantively equal gendered right to social security In so doing it challenges the relationship between the right to social security and traditional conceptions of work that exclude women's labour including their caring roles It argues that the right must have application at the transnational level if it is to address the changing nature of women's work due to globalisation The book applies the framework and principles it develops to a study of international law focusing on the work of key United Nations human rights bodies It also demonstrates the value of this framework in its analysis of three countries social security programmes South Africa Australia and India In combining feminist thought on the nature of work and care with equality theories in developing the right to social security from a gender perspective this book expands the capacity of the right to advance gender equality and address gendered poverty

Gender and the Constitution Helen Irving, 2008-01-21 We live in an era of constitution making New constitutions are appearing in historically unprecedented numbers following regime change in some countries or a commitment to modernization in others No democratic constitution today can fail to recognize or provide for gender equality Constitution makers need to understand the gendered character of all constitutions and to recognize the differential impact on women of constitutional provisions even where these appear gender neutral This book confronts what needs to be considered in writing a constitution when gender equity and agency are goals It examines principles of constitutionalism constitutional jurisprudence and history Its goal is to establish a framework for a gender audit of both new and existing constitutions It eschews a simple focus on rights and examines constitutional language interpretation structures and distribution of power rules of citizenship processes of representation and the constitutional recognition of international and customary law It discusses equality rights and reproductive rights as distinct issues for constitutional design

Feminist Institutionalism in South Africa Amanda Gouws, 2022-10-17 This book deals with feminist institutionalism through asking the key question can gender equality be designed It provides a critical analysis of the South African Commission for Gender Equality to assess its successes and failures over a more than 20 year period and provides insight into the design of structures of national gender machineries how they are designed influences the outcomes for gender equality The research in this collection sheds light on choices for institutional design of national gender machineries during democratic transitions the co optation of institutions the silences and collusions of those selected to work in the institutions and the resourcing of institutions and their impact on policy making for women s substantive equality This book will have a broad appeal for scholars of feminist institutionalism

Women and the Remaking of Politics in Southern Africa Gisela G. Geisler, 2004 This study looks at womens struggle in Southern Africa where the last ten years have seen the most pervasive success stories on the African continent Tracing the history of womens involvement in anti colonial struggles and against apartheid the book analyses post colonial outcomes and examines the strategies employed by womens movements to gain a foothold in politics

Gender Competent Public Law and Policies Marko Davinić, Svetislav Kostić, 2023-01-18 This book offers a new perspective on public law and public policies The collection of papers gathered here begins with an in depth discussion on gender perspectives in constitutional law which can support gender justice but also perpetuate patriarchal norms The book then analyzes the role of the European Ombudsman in the area of gender discrimination. Despite its limited jurisdiction, this institution has become a significant complementary tool in the protection of gender equality and the elimination of gender discrimination at the EU level. Particular attention is paid to the importance of mainstreaming gender into public policies. Thus, the legal and institutional frameworks of Spain and Serbia are presented, which can serve as an inspiration to other countries. Another important aspect covered in the book is an analysis of systemic differences between the average wages of women and men in the six countries of the Western Balkans. In turn, the book presents a discussion on female genital mutilation as a highly gendered crime based on extreme versions of rigid patriarchal ethnic and religious norms and customs. It is analyzed through the lenses of the Istanbul Convention as a tool for combating violence against women. Particular attention is paid to femicide, its definitions, forms, and phenomenological characteristics. Having been only recently acknowledged, femicide is still characterized by an inadequate judicial response in many countries. In this regard, a special focus is on German and Serbian experiences in acknowledging femicide and combating it through various measures. Finally, the importance of stalking laws is discussed, as stalking is a highly gendered crime that many states fail to combat adequately. The collection of essays offered in this book will be of interest to all those working in the field of public law, to policymakers, and to students and academics looking to broaden and deepen their research on various issues in public law and policies from gender perspectives.
