Frankel, Shang-Jin Wei, 1998-02-01 Continental trade blocs are emerging in many parts of the world almost in tandem If trade blocs are required to satisfy the McMillan criterion of not lowering trade volume with outside countries they have to engage in a dramatic reduction of trade barriers against non member countries That may not be politically feasible On the other hand in a world of simultaneous continental trade blocs an open regionalism in which trade blocs undertake relatively modest external liberalization can usually produce Pareto improvement

Assessing Regional Trading Arrangements in the Asia-Pacific John Gilbert, Robert Scollay, Bijit Bora, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, 2001 Using both a gravity model to consider the natural trading bloc hypothesis and simulation using a computer generated equilibrium CGE model to make welfare estimates this publication examines the potential effect of a subset of the new regional trading arrangement RTA proposal in the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation region The objective of this paper is to see to what extent the predictions from these two disparate techniques can be correlated in the context of the new Asia Pacific proposals

On the Size and Number of Regional Integration Arrangements Soamiely Andriamananjara, 1999 Multilateralizing Regionalism Richard Baldwin, Patrick Low, 2009-02-19 Regional trade agreements RTAs have proliferated around the world in the past two decades and now nearly all members of the WTO are party to at least one Besides tariffs and rules of origin regulating trade in goods many RTAs now include provisions on services investments technical barriers to trade and competition rules as well as a host of issues not directly related to trade The geographic reach of RTAs is expanding with transcontinental agreements spreading forcefully alongside intra regional agreements Multilateralizing Regionalism was the title of a major conference held from 10-12 September 2007 at the WTO in Geneva Brought together in this publication the conference papers achieve two things First they marshal detailed new empirical work on the nature of the Spaghetti Bowl and the problems it poses for the multilateral trade system Second they contribute fresh and creative thinking on how to tame the tangle of regional trade agreements
