Mass Dictatorship and Memory as Ever Present Past Jie-Hyun Lim,Barbara Walker,Peter Lambert,2014-01-28 This volume explores the politics of memory involved in coming to terms with the past of mass dictatorship on a global scale Considering how a growing sense of global connectivity and global human rights politics changed the memory landscape the essays explore entangled pasts of dictatorships The Fractured Schoolhouse Neal P. McCluskey,2022-09-15 American public schooling was established to unify diverse people and prepare citizens for democracy Intuitively it would teach diverse people the same values preferably in the same buildings with the goal that they will learn to get along and uphold government by the people But intuition can be wrong significant evidence suggests that public schools have not brought diverse people together whether from legally mandated racial segregation espousing values many people could not accept or human beings simply tending to associate with others like themselves Indeed the basic reality that people have diverse values and desires has rendered public schooling not a unifying force but a battleground That public schooling is necessary for democracy is also not supported both because we do not have a commonly agreed upon definition of democracy and because public schooling violates the bedrock American value liberty that democracy is supposed to protect The Fractured Schoolhouse Reexamining Education for a Free Equal and Harmonious Society proposes that to fulfill the mission of public schooling we need what some might call its opposite school choice Education grounded in liberty would enable diverse people to pursue curricula and policies they think are right without having to impose them on others and by making separated groups equals and easing the creation of new identities it would foster bridge building So Far from the Bamboo Grove Student Packet Novel Units, Inc.
