Encyclopedia of Social Theory Austin Harrington, Barbara L. Marshall, Hans-Peter Müller, 2006 The Encyclopedia of Social Theory contains over 500 entries varying from concise definitions of key terms and short biographies of key theorists to comprehensive surveys of leading concepts debates themes and schools The object of the Encyclopedia has been to give thorough coverage of the central topics in theoretical sociology as well as terms and concepts in the methodology and philosophy of social science Although 106 theorists are given entries the emphasis of the work is on the elucidation of ideas rather than intellectual biography The Encyclopedia covers the leading contemporary domains of debate on social theory and the classical legacies of social thinkers from the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries giving proper balance to both the European and North American traditions and to important new developments in the global self understanding of sociology Social theory has become one of the most vigorous specialisms of sociology in recent years This is in part due to the considerable overlaps of social theory with other disciplinary areas such as cultural and media studies anthropology and political theory and to the cross disciplinary nature of theoretical approaches such as feminism and psychoanalysis and new fields such as postcolonial studies The editors have therefore worked to produce in the Encyclopedia of Social Theory a first call reference for students and researchers across the social sciences and humanities with an interest in contemporary theory and the modern history of ideas The Encyclopedia has been authored by leading international specialists in the field under the direction of a well balanced editorial team It is comprehensively cross referenced and all larger entries carry bibliographies There is a full index

The Western Devaluation of Knowledge Charles B. Osburn, 2013-12-05 The Western Devaluation of Knowledge is an exploration of the causes and effects of Western cultural changes that have evolved during the past half millennium of industrialization to diminish the value of knowledge as process Western culture has developed a conceptualization and valuation of knowledge that reverses the traditional knowledge continuum that connects data information to understanding As a result we displace the subjective and human features of knowledge with automated systems that conforms with information and devalues the knowledge process This book explains this change as a result of the industrial influences that began to gain strength in the 15th century and continued on that path through today's economic and cultural globalization The author shows that science and technology while bringing good on many fronts have also Weakened or replaced traditional sources of cultural authority Advanced a materialistic outlook Hastened the broad spread of capitalist values principles and strategies Fostered a pervasive dependence on technological innovation and Nurtured an extreme rationality Osburn shows that while any one of the above cultural currents would have been sufficient to cause deep and generalized change their confluence was the deciding inspiration for a different epistemology one that has altered the generally accepted meaning and valuation of knowledge

The Western Time of Ancient History Alexandra Lianeri, 2011-03-31 This book examines the conceptual and temporal frames through which modern Western historiography has linked itself to classical antiquity In doing so it articulates a genealogical problematic of what history is and a more strictly focused reappraisal of Greek and Roman historical thought Ancient ideas of history have played a key role in modern debates about history writing from Kant through Hegel to Nietzsche and Heidegger and from Friedrich Creuzer through George Grote and Theodor Mommsen to Momigliano and Moses Finley yet scholarship has paid little attention to the theoretical implications of the reception of these ideas The essays in this collection cover a wide range of relevant topics and approaches and boast distinguished authors from across Europe in the fields of classics ancient and modern history and the theory of historiography the prevailing myths about the American family is that there once existed a harmonious family with three generations living together and that this ideal family broke down under the impact of urbanization and industrialization. The essays in this volume challenge this myth and provide dramatic revisions of simplistic notions about change in the American family. Based on detailed research in a variety of sources including extensive oral history interviews of ordinary people, these essays examine major changes in family life, dispel myths about the past, and offer new directions in research and interpretation. The essays cover a wide spectrum of issues and topics ranging from the organization of the family and household to the networks available to children as they grow up, to the role of the family in the process of industrialization, to the division of labor in the family along gender lines and to the relations between the generations in the later years of life. While discussing family relations in the past and revising prevailing notions of social change, these interdisciplinary essays also provide important perspectives on the present.

Islam and Social Change in French West Africa Sean Hanretta, 2009-03-23. Exploring the history and religious community of a group of Muslim Sufi mystics in colonial French West Africa, this study shows the relationship between religious, social, and economic change in the region. It highlights the role that intellectuals played in shaping social and cultural change and illuminates the specific religious ideas and political contexts that gave their efforts meaning. In contrast to depictions that emphasize the importance of international networks and anti-modern reaction in twentieth-century Islamic reform, this book claims that in West Africa such movements were driven by local forces and constituted only the most recent round in a set of centuries-old debates about the best way for pious people to confront social injustice. It argues that traditional historical methods prevent an appreciation of Muslim intellectual history in Africa by misunderstanding the nature of information gathering during colonial rule and misconstruing the relationship between documents and oral history.
