Stupa And Its Technology A Tibetobuddhist Perspective:

Stūpa and Its Technology Pema Dorjee, 1996 Among all the religious monuments of the world the stupa has the longest uninterrupted historical development Though modelled after the Indian prototype the stupa architecture was developed in all the countries where Buddhism had flourished Over time the structural shape of the stupa underwent significant modifications in India and the other Asian Buddhist countries The present study shows how Tibet became a treasure house of Buddhist culture and literature highlighting important texts dealing with stupa architecture Various ritual activities associated with the construction of the stupa are described along with the eight fundamental types of Tibeto Buddhist stupas and their main structural components A survey of the stupas found in the upper Indus Valley in the Leh region of Ladakh shows their similarity to the Tibeto Buddhist tradition The value of the book is enhanced by an appendix with English translation of four important Tibetan texts preceded by transliteration This monograph is the first in the new sub series of the IGNCA on the Buddhist stupas which would not be restricted to India alone It is hoped that such studies will enable the art historians and archaeologists to understand this important structural form in totality in relation to its wide geographical spread and the distinctive features of particular developments in different countries Stupa And Its Technology Dorjee

Pema, 1996 The Holy Land Reborn Toni Huber, 2008-09-15 The Dalai Lama has said that Tibetans consider themselves the child of Indian civilization and that India is the holy land from whose sources the Tibetans have built their own civilization What explains this powerful allegiance to India In The Holy Land Reborn Toni Huber investigates how Tibetans have maintained a ritual relationship to India particularly by way of pilgrimage and what it means for them to consider India as their holy land Focusing on the Tibetan creation and recreation of India as a destination a landscape and a kind of other in both real and idealized terms Huber explores how Tibetans have used the idea of India as a religious territory and a sacred geography in the development of their own religion and society In a timely closing chapter Huber also takes up the meaning of India for the Tibetans who live in exile in their Buddhist holy land A major contribution to the study of Buddhism The Holy Land Reborn describes changes in Tibetan constructs of India over the centuries ultimately challenging largely static views of the sacred geography of Buddhism in India Buddhist Monks and Business Matters Gregory Schopen, 2004-01-31

This is the second in a series of collected essays by one of today's most distinguished scholars of Indian Buddhism Publication of a third collection is planned in early 2005 In these articles all save one published in various places from 1994 through 2001 Gregory Schopen once again displays the erudition and originality that have contributed to a major shift in the way that Indian Buddhism is perceived understood and studied Tibetan Inscriptions, 2013-07-01 Inscriptions are a rather neglected field within Tibetan Studies because they are often located in places that are not easily accessible for both geographical and political reasons It is thus especially welcome that two of the contributions to this volume deal with inscriptions documented on recent field trips to Tibet Benjamin Wood discusses an inscription in Zha lu that relates an enigmatic conflict in the history of the monastery and Kurt Tropper looks into an epigraphic cycle on the life of the Buddha in Tsaparang Moreover Nathan Hill provides a new interpretation of the beginning of the famous Rkong po inscription and Kunsang Namgyal Lama surveys the various kinds of texts found on tsha tshas An extra level of reflection is added to the volume by Cristina Scherrer Schaub's methodological considerations on the classification and interpretation of inscriptions
