1.0 OBJECTIVES

In this Unit, we shall introduce you to one of the most popular literary forms of our age, i.e. the novel. We shall do this by giving you a working definition of the novel. We shall also outline very briefly, the reasons for its emergence in eighteenth century England. Then, we shall talk about the various types of novels, and also suggest to you some of the ways in which a novel may be read.

If you read this Unit carefully and complete the given exercises, you should be able to:

- define the novel;
- link its emergence to other literary and non-literary factors;
- name the various types of the novel; and
- know how to read a novel.

1.1 WHAT IS A NOVEL?

What is a novel? Most of you, I am sure, can easily differentiate between a novel and a poem, or a novel and drama i.e. you can easily tell which literary works are novels and which are not. But if you are asked to define the word "novel", you may find it a difficult task. The reason can be that it is not easy to define literary terms. Definitions of literary terms often lack the accuracy that definitions of scientific terms have. Not only you, but even experts find it hard to give a final definition of many literary terms. They often enter into discussions and debates on the meaning of a particular literary term. In the case of the novel, there is an additional problem. The novel is a very open and flexible literary form. Over the last three centuries, it has changed and developed a great deal. Some novelists, particularly in the last fifty years, have fully exploited this flexibility. They have changed the whole shape of the novel form.

Knowing then that no definition of the word 'novel' will be broad enough to fit every type of novel, we shall attempt to formulate only a working definition of this word. Our definition will try to accommodate all types of novels, but will be primarily based on the masterpieces of great novelists like Fielding, Dickens, and Hardy, among others.

We can begin by listing the following properties of the novel:

- i) it is a narrative of considerable length, i.e. it is a long story
- ii) it is in prose
- iii) it is in written form and is usually printed in book form
- iv) it contains situations and actions that are fictitious, i.e. imaginary, but which seem to represent real life. It deals with imaginary characters that seem to be real

Let us discuss these points one by one.

1. Most people who have tried to define the novel have insisted that it should be of considerable length. But it is difficult to say exactly how long it should be. There are long short stories which may be more or less the length of a short novel. This may lead to some confusion. As a general rule, one can say that a novel is much longer than a folktale, a
