

Perinatal Mental Health and Substance Use

Substance use disorder and PMADS
(perinatal mood and anxiety disorders)

SUBSTANCE USE DURING PREGNANCY

In the U.S., the National Survey on Drug Use and Health indicated that 4.7% of pregnant women used illicit substances in 2015.

Furthermore, 9.3% of these women used alcohol and 13.6% used tobacco.

INFANTS EXPOSED

In 2012, it was estimated that approximately 380,000 newborn infants were exposed to illicit substances in the U.S.

Over 550,000 were exposed to alcohol and more than 1 million were exposed to tobacco before birth.

COMMONLY ABUSED SUBSTANCES

Tobacco is the most commonly used substance during pregnancy, followed by alcohol and then cocaine-derived drugs. Marijuana, amphetamines, and opioids are other drugs used.

THE RISKS OF SUBSTANCE ABUSE DURING PREGNANCY

Substance abuse by women of childbearing age is problematic because it poses hazards to women's health and reproductive health. Substance use during pregnancy is especially dangerous, as it directly impacts both mother and child, increasing prematurity, intrauterine or neonatal death, and child maltreatment.

GETTING TREATMENT

We know that substance use disorders have negative consequences for mother and child well-being. However, only 10.3% to 39% of pregnant women with these complex health issues receive treatment.
