Schooling for Pupils with Emotional and Behavioural Difficulties John Visser,2013-10-23 First Published in 1998 Increasing pressure and new demands on LEAs schools and their staff have led to an overall reduction in the number of special schools for children with EBD and a questioning of their place within the range of provision for these pupils Recent attention has also been drawn by HMCI to the number of these schools which have failed to pass the OFSTED inspection process This book is based on a national examination of special schools providing for pupils with EBD The authors identify factors associated with good practice and offer advice on how schools can become more effective in providing for the country's most troubled and challenging pupils. They also highlight aspects of successful provision which can be applied in mainstream schools and pupil referral units. Improving Schooling for Language-Minority Children Committee on Developing a Research Agenda on the Education of Limited English Proficient and Bilingual Students, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, National Research Council and Institute of Medicine, 1997-04-30

How do we effectively teach children from homes in which a language other than English is spoken? In Improving Schooling for Language Minority Children a committee of experts focuses on this central question striving toward the construction of a strong and credible knowledge base to inform the activities of those who educate children as well as those who fund and conduct research. The book reviews a broad range of studies from basic ones on language literacy and learning to others in educational settings. The committee proposes a research agenda that responds to issues of policy and practice yet maintains scientific integrity. This comprehensive volume provides perspective on the history of bilingual education in the United States, summarizes relevant research on development of a second language literacy and content knowledge, reviews past evaluation studies, explores what we know about effective schools and classrooms for these children, examines research on the education of teachers of culturally and linguistically diverse students, critically reviews the system for the collection of education statistics as it relates to this student population, and recommends changes in the infrastructure that supports research on these students.

Effective Leadership for School Improvement Alma Harris, Christopher Day, David Hopkins, Mark Hadfield, Andy Hargreaves, Christopher Chapman, 2013-09-05

In a complex and multi-layered world the conventional idea of great leadership being the result of the efforts of a single individual is rapidly becoming redundant. This book takes up the challenge of finding an alternative method of leadership in educational contexts and looks at how this can help achieve sustained improvement in schools. The authors acknowledge that there are no simple solutions to school improvement. They argue that the effective leaders of the future will be those who are able to share responsibility, build positive relationships, and offer stakeholders teachers, parents, and students an opportunity to work together to improve their schools. The book is based around four key areas of concern: the changing context of leadership, leadership and school improvement, building leadership capacity, and future direction and implications. In each section the authors discuss current theories and issues and put forward alternative ideas and perspectives. This important book will make valuable reading for headteachers, principals, deputies, and other senior teachers, particularly those undertaking leadership qualifications and training. It will also be of interest to postgraduate students and school governors.

IMPROVING SCHOOLS FOR AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDENTS Sheryl J. Denbo, Lynson Moore Beaulieu, 2002-01-01

Improving Schools for African American Students is designed to provide educational leaders with a better understanding of how to recognize the diversity of strengths that Black students bring with them to school and how to use these strengths to improve achievement.
