Landscapes in the Roman North Ton Derks,Nico Roymans,2025-10-01 This edited volume presents a synthesis of recent research on villas and villa landscapes in the northern provinces of the Roman world It offers an original multi dimensional perspective on the social economic and cultural functioning of villas within the context of the Roman empire Themes discussed include the economic basis of villa dominated landscapes rural slavery town country dynamics the role of monumental burials in villa landscapes and self representation and lifestyle of villa owners This study offers a major contribution to the comparative research of villa landscapes and the phenomenon of regionality in Roman rural landscapes Amsterdam Archaeological Studies is a series devoted to the study of past human societies from the prehistory up into modern times primarily based on the study of archaeological remains The series will include excavation reports of modern fieldwork studies of categories of material culture and synthesising studies with broader images of past societies thereby contributing to the theoretical and methodological debates in archaeology The Powhatan Landscape Martin D.

Gallivan, 2018-09-17 Southern Anthropological Society James Mooney Award As Native American history is primarily studied through the lens of European contact the story of Virginia's Powhatans has traditionally focused on the English arrival in the Chesapeake This has left a deeper indigenous history largely unexplored a longer narrative beginning with the Algonquians construction of places communities and the connections in between The Powhatan Landscape breaks new ground by tracing Native placemaking in the Chesapeake from the Algonquian arrival to the Powhatan's clashes with the English Martin Gallivan details how Virginia Algonquians constructed riverine communities alongside fishing grounds and collective burials and later within horticultural towns Ceremonial spaces including earthwork enclosures within the center place of Werowocomoco gathered people for centuries prior to 1607 Even after the violent ruptures of the colonial era Native people returned to riverine towns for pilgrimages commemorating the enduring power of place For today's American Indian communities in the Chesapeake this reexamination of landscape and history represents a powerful basis from which to contest narratives and policies that have previously denied their existence A volume in the series Society and Ecology in Island and Coastal Archaeology edited by Victor D Thompson The Archaeology of Maritime Landscapes Ben

Ford, 2011-05-21 Maritime cultural landscapes are collections of submerged archaeological sites or combinations of terrestrial and submerged sites that reflect the relationship between humans and the water These landscapes can range in size from a single beach to an entire coastline and can include areas of terrestrial sites now inundated as well as underwater sites that are now desiccated However what binds all of these sites together is the premise that each aspect of the landscape cultural political environmental technological and physical is interrelated and can not be understood without reference to the others In this maritime cultural landscape approach individual sites are treated as features within the larger landscape and the interpretation of single sites add to a larger analysis of a region or culture This approach provides physical and theoretical links between terrestrial and underwater archaeology as well as prehistoric and historic archaeology consequently providing a framework for integrating such diverse topics as trade resource procurement habitation industrial production and warfare into a holistic study of the past Landscape studies foster broader perspectives and approaches extending the study of maritime cultures beyond the shoreline Despite this potential the archaeological study of maritime landscapes is a relatively untried approach with many questions regarding the methods and perspectives needed to effectively analyze these landscapes The chapters in this volume which include contributions from the United States the United Kingdom Norway and Australia address many of the theoretical and methodological questions surrounding maritime cultural landscapes The authors comprise established scholars as well as archaeologists at the beginning of their careers

providing a healthy balance of experience and innovation The chapters also demonstrate parity between method and theory where the varying interpretations of culture and space are given equal weight with the challenges of investigating both wet and dry sites across large areas The Garden ,1874 Integrated Landscapes in Policy, Practice and Everyday Life

Kathryn Moore,Anastasia Nikologianni,Alex Albans,Paul Cureton,2025-06-27 Exploring the ways in which an integrated landscape vision can help deliver regional national and international agendas this book investigates how a new idea of landscape can reimagine governance policy economics culture identity health transport and development priorities by connecting in a more powerful and meaningful way with local aspirations and demands Developed in fieldwork undertaken over the last decade the capacity of a landscape led approach to deal with problems such as rapid urbanisation water and food security climate change air pollution and health is both timely and topical Divided into three main sections it includes illustrated case studies from the UK Europe East Asia South Asia and more As part of a strategy to capture build and disseminate expertise in this approach the book aims to develop an interdisciplinary body of work that will appeal to academics and professionals by bringing together a number of contributors who are operating at the cutting edge of landscape led large scale transformation This book is essential for practitioners and academics of landscape architecture as well as students in the architecture and design fields Plant Evolution in the Mediterranean John D.

Thompson,2020-08-21 Since the first edition of this book published in 2005 there has been an immense amount of new and fascinating work on the history ecology and evolution of the Mediterranean flora During this time human impacts have continued to increase dramatically significantly influencing both the ecology and evolution of the region s biota This timely and comprehensive update of the original text integrates a diverse and scattered literature to produce a synthetic account of Mediterranean plant evolutionary ecology It maintains the accessible style of its previous version whilst incorporating recent work in a new structural framework This is not a traditional plant science book per se but a novel integration of history ecology biogeography and evolution all set in the context of a dramatically increasing human footprint There is a particular emphasis on the role of human activities as an ecological factor and their subsequent impact on plant evolution Conversely it demonstrates how an understanding of the evolutionary ecology of the region s flora can be used to provide insights into its future conservation and management Plant Evolution in the Mediterranean is aimed at all those who are interested in the biology of the Mediterranean region whether it is taxonomy ecology evolution conservation policy and management or the regional history of its biodiversity in general It will be of relevance and use to all graduate students and researchers of Mediterranean type ecosystem ecology and geography as well as professional ecologists evolutionary biologists conservation biologists and environmental practitioners requiring a concise authoritative overview of the topic General Technical

Archaeological Landscapes of the Near East T. J. Wilkinson, 2003-11-01 Society for American Archaeology Book Award Winner Many fundamental studies of the origins of states have built upon landscape data but an overall study of the Near Eastern landscape itself has never been attempted Spanning thousands of years of history the ancient Near East presents a bewildering range of landscapes the understanding of which can greatly enhance our ability to infer past political and social systems Tony Wilkinson now shows that throughout the Holocene humans altered the Near Eastern environment so thoroughly that the land has become a human artifact albeit one that retains the power to shape human societies In this trailblazing book the first to describe and explain the development of the Near Eastern landscape using archaeological data Wilkinson identifies specific landscape signatures for various regions and periods from the early stages of complex societies in the fifth to sixth millennium B C to the close of the Early Islamic period around the tenth century A D From Bronze Age city states to colonized steppes these signature landscapes of irrigation systems tells and other features changed through time along with changes in social economic political and environmental conditions By weaving together the record of the human landscape with evidence of settlement the environment and social and economic conditions Wilkinson provides a holistic view of the ancient Near East that complements archaeological excavations cuneiform texts and other conventional sources Through this overview culled from thirty years research Wilkinson establishes a new framework for understanding the economic and physical infrastructure of the region By describing the basic attributes of the ancient cultural landscape and placing their development within the context of a dynamic environment he breaks new ground in landscape archaeology and offers a new context for understanding the ancient Near East
