Innovation in Public Sector Services Paul Windrum, Per M. Koch, 2008-01-01 This is a timely and important contribution on innovation processes within the public sector. Departing from the myth of private equal to entrepreneurial public equal to bureaucratic paralysis, it offers precious insights into public sector learning, entrepreneurship, of course, inertias, and also the trade-offs involved in different management philosophies and performance evaluation methods. It is a rare example of political economy done right. Giovanni Dosi, Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies, Pisa. Innovation and entrepreneurship have become the cornerstones for economic growth, jobs, and competitiveness in the global economy. However, the burden for generating an innovative economy has fallen on the private sector. Scholars have been remarkably taciturn concerning the role for innovation and entrepreneurship in the public sector; this has remained strikingly invisible. No more. In Innovation in Public Sector Services, the authors assemble a team of leading international scholars in a path-breaking study to identify the potential for the public sector in contributing to innovation and entrepreneurship. In particular, the volume introduces an insightful new analytical framework that lays the foundations for transforming a sleepy public sector into a dynamic, innovative, and highly effective partner for leadership and change in the global era. Scholars, policy makers, and business leaders who think that the public sector is condemned to being a hindrance to innovation and entrepreneurship rather than a leader championing change and competitiveness in a global economy would be well advised to read this important new book. David B. Audretsch, Indiana University, Bloomington, US, and WHU, Germany. This groundbreaking book provides new key insights and opens up an important research agenda. The book develops a new taxonomy of the different types of innovation found in public sector services and investigates the key features and drivers of public sector entrepreneurship. The book contains new statistical studies and a set of six international case studies in health and social services. The research shows that public sector organisations are important innovators in their own right. Economic growth and social development depend on efficient public sector organisations that deliver high quality services effectively.

organised and have excellent interactions with the private sector NGOs and citizens Public sector innovation is complex invariably involving changes in services organisational structures and managerial practices Essential to successful innovation are the policy entrepreneurs and service entrepreneurs who develop organise and manage new innovations This book provides key lessons for these public sector entrepreneurs Innovation in Public Sector Services fills a fundamental gap explaining the dynamics of innovation and entrepreneurship in public sector services and is of great importance for researchers academics and students interested in innovation entrepreneurship and strategy management It provides a stimulating read for anyone working or interested in health and social services Essentials of the U.S. Health Care System Leiyu Shi,Douglas A. Kimberly, Robert E. Gunther, 2004-09-20 The INSEAD Wharton Alliance combines the insights of two leading global business schools to examine the forces that are driving firms to globalize the consequences positive and negative that accompany increasing globalization and their managerial and political implications. Written by experts in diverse management disciplines including leadership, finance, marketing, and operations management, the book is an important contribution to contemporary business strategy. In contrast to strident and often heavily rhetorical debates, this volume focuses on the managerial strategies involved in globalizing businesses, including leadership, market entry, and managing risks. The non-partisan treatment of the issues will be of interest to managers wrestling with the many challenges of globalizing, to policy makers interested in whether and how to either slow or to accelerate the process, and to those in non-governmental organizations concerned with understanding global business challenges.
