The Public Opinion Process Irving Crespi, 2013-11-05 What is public opinion How can we best study it This work presents a process model that answers these questions by defining public opinion in a way that also identifies an approach to studying it The model serves as a framework into which the findings of empirical research are integrated producing a comprehensive understanding of public opinion that encompasses the congeries of middle range theories that have emerged from empirical research The three dimensional process model and the way it is explicated satisfies the diverse and sometimes divergent needs and interests of political scientists sociologists social psychologists and communication specialists who study public opinion This is achieved by clearly differentiating and interrelating the following individual opinions the judgmental outcomes of a process in which attitudinal systems comprised of beliefs values interests and feelings function as intervening variables that direct and structure perceptions of public issues collective opinions the outcomes of communication from which mutual awareness emerges and that integrate separate individual opinions into a significant social force and political roles of collective and individual opinions the outcomes of the extent to which collective and individual opinions have achieved legitimacy as the basis for governing a people DON T USE THIS PARAGRAPH FOR GENERAL CATALOGS Each dimension of the model has its corresponding subprocess transactions between individuals and their environments communications among individuals and collectives and political legitimization of public opinion Since the process model is by definition interactional none of the three dimensions has theoretical or sequential priority over the others Instead of treating the psychological political and sociological aspects of public opinion as separate stages of an unidirectional process the three aspects are modeled as dimensions of a complex ongoing system in continuous interaction with each other This conceptualization satisfies the need for a truly interdisciplinary theory in that it demands that each dimension be studied in terms of its defining sub process It also avoids the twin errors of reductionism and reification in the study of public opinion across them. The serendipity within chapters with respect to jurisdictional particularities and contrasts allows readers to consider not only a range of approaches to policy analysis but also the ways in which policies and policy ideas play out in different times and places. The sections move from a focus on prevailing policy tendencies through increasingly critical and outsider perspectives on policy. They address in turn the contemporary strategic emphasis on large scale reform substantive emphases at several levels on leadership and governance improving teacher quality and conceptualizing learning in various domains around the notion of literacies and concluding finally with a contrasting topic workplace learning which has had less policy attention and thus allows readers to consider both the advantages and disadvantages of learning and teaching under the bright gaze of policy.

International Handbook of Educational Policy Nina Bascia, Alister Cumming, Amanda Datnow, Kenneth Leithwood, David Livingstone, 2008-05-14 Nina Bascia Alister Cumming Amanda Datnow Kenneth Leithwood and David Livingstone This Handbook presents contemporary and emergent trends in educational policy research in over fifty chapters written by nearly ninety leading researchers from a number of countries It is organized into five broad sections which capture many of the current dominant educational policy foci and at the same time situate current understandings historically in terms of both how they are conceptualized and in terms of past policy practice The chapters themselves are empirically grounded providing illustrations of the conceptual implications contained within them as well as allowing for comparisons

By considering biological factors, research has advanced the understanding of specific learning difficulties such as dyslexia and dyscalculia. Likewise, neuroscience is uncovering why certain types of learning are more rewarding than others. Of late a lot of research has gone in the field of neural networks and deep learning. It is worthwhile to consider these research areas in investigating the interplay between the human brain and human formal natural learning. Mapping Sustainability Nazli Choucri, Dinsha Mistree, Farnaz Haghseta, Toufic Mezher, Wallace R. Baker, Carlos I. Ortiz, 2007-09-04. Challenges and Focus. This book focuses on three interdependent research initiatives designed to facilitate the management of transitions toward sustainable development. These initiatives consist of a mapping sustainability as a domain of knowledge contributing to the development of global knowledge, e-networking and extending the knowledge value chain and c-exploring new methods to expand our knowledge and to improve e-networking practices. While the activities differ in nature, scale and scope, they are highly interconnected. It is our hope that jointly they will contribute to our common quest for a sustainable future. Our underlying objectives are to contribute to the provision, management and sharing of knowledge and to enhance the value of knowledge and its uses by different constituencies in diverse contexts and at different stages of development. The central theme of this book connecting its different parts is about ways of transcending critical barriers to the effective uses of knowledge and e-networking. Of special relevance is the development of new approaches to the provision and transmission from local sources to global networks and from global sources to local networks. In many ways this is a book of theory and methods as well as policy and performance.
