Thinking about Technology Gil Germain, 2017-08-04 The world we make reflects the way reality is perceived and today the world is perceived primarily in technological terms So argues Gil Germain in Thinking About Technology How the Technological Mind Misreads Reality Given the connection between perception and action or thinking and doing Germain first highlights the central features of technological worldview to better understand the contemporary drive to master the conditions of human existence He then boldly proposes that the technological worldview seriously misreads the nature of the world it seeks mastery over and shows how this misinterpretation invariably leads to the technologically related challenges currently vexing the contemporary social order from the drift toward a posthuman future to the anti globalization backlash Germain closes Thinking About Technology by articulating an alternative worldview to the technological perspective and illustrating how this re reading of reality might help us inhabit the technological landscape in ways better attuned to the human condition

Gay, 2018-12-11 Technology has always shaped human life and our understanding of what it means to be human But does it actually encourage human flourishing By exploring the doctrine of the incarnation and what it means for our embodiment Craig Gay raises concerns about the theological implications of modern technologies and movements such as transhumanism offering
