Congressional Record United States. Congress, 1979      Strategic Planning in Technology Transfer to Less Developed Countries Christian Madu, 1992-01-27 Despite an avalanche of literature over the last 30 years there has been relatively little written on the role played by strategic planning in the transfer of technology particularly from developed to less developed countries Technology transfer which involves the acquisition of inventive activity by secondary users is conceded vital to socio economic growth but usually it is looked at internationally from a micro perspective Unlike other books Madu s volume looks at technology transfer holistically It examines the advantages of technology transfer and its limitations by viewing recipient nations as systems in which social economic behavioral and political influences converge to help shape technological decisions Only when a systems perspective like this is adopted and technology seen as a strategic variable can technology transfer be understood and successfully implemented says Madu Madu thus identifies the failures of technology transfer as the result of malfunctions in three components of the system technology structure and behavior He analyzes these malfunctions offers ways to repair them and considers technology from the viewpoints of both transferrer and receiver whose missions goals and objectives are often not only disparate but sometimes in conflict He then offers what he calls prescriptive frameworks and guidelines to help implement transfer and to see it as a variable that must be integrated into national development planning Throughout Madu makes it clear that the objective of technology transfer is the maximizing of social welfare Using this overarching premise he is able to evaluate both the benefits and the social costs associated with technology transfer and to develop his prescriptive integrative models Intended for specialists in international finance and development and international business management Madu's book will be of special value to teachers of graduate courses in socio-economic development, public policy and economics and to policymakers throughout government.

The Environmental Element in Space Law Lotta Viikari, 2008-06-30 While decades of space ventures have led to significant technological advances, space activities have also brought increasing environmental problems. This book examines the current international legal regimes in space law and environmental law in order to ascertain their applicability and efficacy in addressing environmental threats in the space sector. The research suggests mechanisms which could improve environmental protection in the sector and strengthen the environmental element in space law. These mechanisms include a variety of norm-setting strategies used in international environmental management. Special attention is drawn to the potential of environmental impact assessment in the space sector and to dispute resolution procedures. Like other areas of human activities, the space sector should accommodate both economic interests and environmental protection in line with the principle of sustainable development.

CAFTA-DR, European Free Trade Agreements and the Industrial Property System in Central America Fabian Böttger, 2025-06-19 This book analyses the impact of CAFTA-DR and European Free Trade Agreements on the industrial property system in Central America. While there is ample literature on bilateral and regional FTAs, it is often limited to the contractual obligations assumed by the participating countries. This book goes a step further and analyses how these obligations are implemented through national legislation, institutional changes and legal practice. To provide a deeper understanding of the effects of FTAs on national IP systems, the book addresses research questions that go beyond general publications on the topic. Research questions include: Is the combination of market access and IP rules in a bilateral FTA an effective and appropriate trade deal? How are the IP requirements under the FTAs implemented into the national statutory framework? Do the IP rules of FTAs sufficiently address institutional factors necessary for an effective IP system? Do they provide for an appropriate balance between minimum protection and flexibilities and support relevant IP policy objectives? The book covers the CAFTA-DR member states: Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua, reviewing the implementation of FTA obligations regarding patents, plant varieties, test data, trademarks, geographical indications, designs, genetic resources and traditional knowledge enforcement and other areas. By looking at several countries, a broad range of IP rights and the practical implementation of FTA obligations, this book provides a broad range of information and insights.

Energy Abstracts for Policy Analysis, 1979-11     A Macro Perspective on Technology Transfer Allan Reddy, 1996-08-30 Dr Reddy points out that the key to economic success particularly for the less developed countries of the world is technology but only when properly applied Despite years of help through technology transfer however many LDCs are still impoverished This leads him to conclude that either the wrong technologies were transferred or the right ones were not transferred His book thus focuses on ways in which LDCs can improve their economic growth through technology transfer arguing that it is the assimilation of technology into their socioeconomic and cultural structures that is critical to their economic development not the indiscriminate borrowing from advanced nations In doing so Dr Reddy presents a behavioral model which proves that technology absorption is just as if not more important than a simple transfer process A challenging research based discussion for academics in economics business sociology marketing and management and for business and government policymakers worldwide Dr Reddy introduces the concepts related to technology transfer and discusses the major participants in the worldwide transfer enterprise He presents barriers and ways to overcome them in technology transferral explores the ethical dimensions and then lays out his technology transfer assimilation model He applies the model to a specific and representative developing country India and ends with a discussion of conclusions that can be drawn from it His three appendixes elaborate on the need for and methods to transfer technology to LDCs provide ways to analyze the costs and present a model of reciprocal distribution that may benefit both the donor and the recipient country in the transfer process
