Technology Transfers And Licensing:

Reverse Licensing Manucheh Shahrokhi, 1987-01-19 Reverse Licensing evaluates the transfer of technology to the U S as an alternative growth strategy for both small and medium sized U S manufacturing firms which need new and competitive technology and for foreign firms which are anxious to enter the U S market but lack the required resources for export and or foreign direct investment The first theoretical research on international technology licensing from the U S licensees standpoint this book examines reverse licensing as an alternative to reverse investment In addition a sample of 120 U S manufacturing firms which have actually utilized reverse licensing is used for empirical and statistical analysis

Anderman, John Kallaugh, 2006 The new Technology Transfer Block Exemption Regulation in force from May 1 2004 signals a profound change in the nature of the regulatory framework for technology

Cyhn, 2002-03-27 This book analyses the technology development efforts of Korea's electronics industry the country's largest exporter It asks how the Korean electronics industry was able to develop both in terms of production and technology despite low inflows of licensing and foreign direct investments The book argues that the key to its spectacular growth has been through its participation and learning from an inter firm arrangement called original equipment manufacturing arrangement OEM A number of firm level case studies on the Korean electronics industry support this argument The role of the government especially related to its technology policy has also been analysed The government was effective in providing financial incentives for the firms technological upgrading efforts but its supplying of direct technological assistance had limited success Overall this book argues that contrary to many previous studies the role of multinational enterprises has been significant in the development of Korea's electronics industry and that they have acted as a technological tutor for Korea through OEM P xiv tributors world 0 Globalization, Foreign Direct Investment and
