Television Abroad Kerry Segrave, 2013-04-26 Once the major Hollywood studios got over their loathing of television as an entertainment medium they moved quickly to try to dominate both domestic and international programming In the United States the eight major studios controlled an overwhelming majority of all television programming by the early 1950s Their efforts in foreign markets were not quite so successful but by the 1990s U S distributors controlled about 75 percent of the international television trade Hollywood s efforts in television were often thwarted by governments that recognized the airwaves as a public resource and intervened in varying degrees to keep the studios programming off the air in their countries Still the U S industry found various ways to provide American fare to foreign viewers Even into the 1980s for example some Hollywood shows could be bought by foreign broadcasters for fees as low as 25 per segment Despite these efforts the American studios have never been able to completely dominate foreign airwaves Viewers usually prefer their own domestic fare to that offered by Hollywood This history fully documents the U S television industry s efforts in foreign markets and how it continues to look for new markets CCTV Surveillance Bozzano G Luisa, 2013-10-22 A complete reference on CCTV

The Wireless World and Radio Review , 1926      Wireless World , 1927      Cosmopolitan Dreams Jennifer Dubrow, 2018-10-31 In late nineteenth century South Asia the arrival of print fostered a dynamic and interactive literary culture There within the pages of Urdu language periodicals and newspapers readers found a public sphere that not only catered to their interests but encouraged their reactions to featured content Cosmopolitan Dreams brings this culture to light showing how literature became a site in which modern daily life could be portrayed and satirized the protocols of modernity challenged and new futures imagined Drawing on never before translated Urdu fiction and prose and focusing on the novel and satire Jennifer Dubrow shows that modern Urdu literature was defined by its practice of self critique and parody Urdu writers resisted the cultural models offered by colonialism creating instead a global community of imagination in which literary models could freely circulate and be readapted mixed and drawn upon to develop alternative lines of thinking Highlighting the participation of readers and writers from diverse social and religious backgrounds the book reveals an Urdu cosmopolis where lively debates thrived in newspapers literary journals and letters to the editor shedding fresh light on the role of readers in shaping vernacular literary culture Arguing against current understandings of Urdu as an exclusively Muslim language Dubrow demonstrates that in the late nineteenth century Urdu was a cosmopolitan language spoken by a transregional transnational community that eschewed identities of religion caste and class The Urdu cosmopolis pictured here was soon fractured by the forces of nationalism and communalism Even so Dubrow is able to establish the persistence of Urdu cosmopolitanism into the present and shows that Urdu's strong tradition as a language of secular critical modernity did not end in the late nineteenth century but continues to flourish in film television and on line In lucid prose Dubrow makes the dynamic world of colonial Urdu print culture come to life in a way that will interest scholars of modern Asian literatures
