The Cambridge Murders:

The Cambridge Murders Glyn Daniel, 2001-07-01 Fisher College at Cambridge lies between St John's and Trinity Colleges a fact which may escape those who visit Cambridge trusting only to the official guide books and seeing no more than a gap of twenty feet between those two great houses of learning Here one morning the bedmakers and gyps clamouring for admission on the last day of term a were admitted to find lying across their path the body of one of the College porters The murder of the porter begins a mystery which is deepened when it is found that the unpopular Dean of the college is missing The search for the murderer is conducted in part by the police and partly by the Vice President of Fisher College Sir Richard Cherrington an eminent but slightly eccentric archaeologist with a penchant for amateur detection The Cambridge Murders is a story of murder at high table of death and detection amid good living and scholarship did certain domestic murders fire the Victorian imagination In her analysis of literary and cultural representations of this phenomenon across genres Bridget Walsh traces how the perception of the domestic murderer changed across the nineteenth century and suggests ways in which the public appetite for such crimes was representative of wider social concerns She argues that the portrayal of domestic murder did not signal a consensus of opinion regarding the domestic space but rather reflected significant discontent with the cultural and social codes of behaviour circulating in society particularly around issues of gender and class Examining novels trial transcripts medico legal documents broadsides criminal and scientific writing illustration and notably Victorian melodrama Walsh focuses on the relationship between the domestic sphere so central to Victorian values and the desecration of that space by the act of murder Her book encompasses the gendered representation of domestic murder for both men and women as it tackles crucial questions related to Victorian ideas of nationhood national health political and social inequality newspaper coverage of murder unstable and contested models of masculinity and the ambivalent portrayal of the female domestic murderer at the fin de si cle The Bibliography of Regional Fiction in Britain and Ireland, 1800-2000 Keith D.
