Women and the Environment Sally Sontheimer, 1991 Increasingly over the last 20 years women in poor developing countries have had to cope with growing ecological stress Food fodder wood and water previously in adequate supply have become scarce and women have also been deprived of traditional access to cultivable land Those who left the countryside for the cities now face terrible pollution miserable housing and poor sanitation and water supplies This reader tells the rarely told story of women living and coping in these dreadful conditions It is a book of hope because it shows them to be not passive victims but courageous fighters and organizers in the face of natural disaster uncaring bureaucracy agencies and governments whose priorities lie elsewhere and traditional structures inimical to their needs The women and their organizations described here have produced demonstrably effective approaches for more sustainable uses of their resources and environments challenging conventional accounts of their roles Women and Planning Clara H.

English patent system and its relationship with technical change during the period between 1660 and 1800 when the patent system evolved from an instrument of royal patronage into one of commercial competition among the inventors and manufacturers of the Industrial Revolution It analyses the legal and political framework within which patenting took place and gives an account of the motivations and fortunes of patentees who obtained patents for a variety of purposes beyond the simple protection of an invention It includes the first in depth attempt to gauge the reliability of the patent statistics as a measure of inventive activity and technical change in the early part of the Industrial Revolution and suggests that the distribution of patents is a better guide to the advance of capitalism than to the centres of inventive activity It also queries the common assumption that the chief goal of inventors was to save labour and examines contemporary criticism of the patent system in the light of the changing conceptualisation of invention among natural scientists and political economists

Technology Assessment Janine Morgall Traulsen,1993-10-14 How well does technology assessment TA relate to women's lives If women are underrepresented in the long term research and development process that leads to scientific advancements how can TA understand technology aimed at women It can't claim the author of Technology Assessment A Feminist Perspective A relative new field TA examines the social aspect of technology and provides information critical to

Limited Livelihoods Sonya O. Rose, 2003-09-02 Integrating analytical tools from feminist theory cultural studies and sociology to illuminate detailed historical evidence Sonya Rose argues that gender was a central organizing principle of the nineteenth century industrial transformation in England She elaborates a cultural theory of gender that suggests why it is an inherent aspect of all social and economic relations Analysing employer strategies and state policies and the role of work in family life she demonstrates that neither industrial transformation nor class relations can be understood when reduced to gender neutral and abstract forces
