The Berlin Aging Study Paul B. Baltes,Karl Ulrich Mayer,2001-03-19 The present and future of our society are shaped by an ever increasing proportion of old and very old people The Berlin Aging Study is one of the largest interdisciplinary efforts to explore old age and aging Unique aspects of the Berlin Aging Study are the spectrum of scientific disciplines involved the range of discipline specific and interdisciplinary research topics the focus on very old age 70 to over 100 years and the empirical reference to a representative heterogenous urban population The study s first cross sectional findings on intellectual abilities self and personality social relationships physical health functional capacity medical treatment mental disorders such as depression and dementia socioeconomic conditions activities everyday competence subjective well being and gender differences are reported in depth in this book The study was carried out in the context of the Berlin Brandenburg Academy of Sciences study group on Aging and Social Development The authors primarily conduct their research at the Berlin Max Planck Institute for Human Development the Free University of Berlin and the Humboldt University Berlin , Annual Review of Gerontology and Geriatrics, Volume 11, 1991 K. Warner Schaie, PhD,1991-09-15 Overall this issue is well organized and informative a welcome addition to research literature available in the field of aging Educational Gerontology Learning Resources The International Journal of Indian Psychology, Volume 4, Issue 1, No. 80 IJIP.In,2016-12-13 Culture and Well-Being Ed Diener,2009-06-04 material boundaries capture cultural effects The articles contained in this volume offer initial answers to most of these questions The culture and well being questions are of fundamental importance to understanding in the entire eld and to scienti c knowledge in the behavioral s ences as a whole Unless we understand what is universal and what is speci c we cannot hope to understand the processes governing well being Unfortunately our scienti c knowledge in most behavioral science elds including the study of we being has been built on a narrow database drawn from westernized industrialized nations This means that we have only a little knowledge of whether our ndings are generalizable to all peoples of the globe and to universal human psychological processes Fortunately during the last decade my students and I as well as others working in this area have rapidly expanded our knowledge of well being vis a vis culture The first attempt to summarize the findings in this area came in 1999 with Culture and Subjective Well Being a book edited by Eunkook Suh and Diener The current volume represents a renewed effort to give a broad overview of major findings in this area and to point to the important directions for future research Composition of This Volume I am very pleased with the articles presented in this volume because I believe that they represent true advances in our fundamental understanding of subjective well being

The Many Faces of Health, Competence and Well-Being in Old Age Hans-Werner Wahl, Herrmann Brenner, Heidrun Mollenkopf, Dietrich Rothenbacher, Christoph Rott, 2006-01-09 The main aim of the book is to provide an interdisciplinary treatment of a set of key issues of current ageing research i.e. health competence and well being These key issues are addressed based on three converging research streams social ecological research which assumes that major processes and outcomes of ageing such as day to day competence are shaped by social and physical spatial environments geropsychology research which is driven by a life span developmental conception of ageing and epidemiology which offers most fundamental disease function and prevention related data Each of the three major research directions are outlined by a short introduction followed by three chapters treating in an empirical manner most recent key research questions All chapters are then also discussed by renowned ageing experts This volume links ageing research with policy considerations and implications and establishes a link between European research and the knowledge base of the international scientific community concerned with ageing This book will be of great interest to scholars and graduate students in ageing research in the social and behavioural field as well as in epidemiology geriatrics geropsychiatry demography and biogerontology

Understanding Human Development Ursula M. Staudinger, Ulman E.R. Lindenberger, 2012-12-06 K Warner Schaie I am pleased to write a foreword for this interesting volume particularly as over many years I have had the privilege of interacting with the editors and a majority of the contributors in various professional roles as a colleague mentor or research collaborator The editors begin their introduction by asking why one would want to read yet another book on human development They immediately answer their question by pointing out that many developmentally oriented texts and other treatises neglect the theoretical foundations of human development and fail to embed psychological constructs within the multidisciplinary context so essential to understanding development This volume provides a positive remedy to past deficiencies in volumes on human development with a well organized structure that leads the reader from a general introduction through the basic processes to methodological issues and the relation of developmental constructs to social context and biological infrastructure This approach does not surprise After all the editors and most of the contributors at one time or another had a connection to the Max Planck Institute of Human Development in Berlin whether as students junior scientists or senior visitors That institute under the leadership of Paul Baltes has been instrumental in pursuing a systematic lifespan approach to the study of cognition and personality Over the past two decades it has influenced the careers of a generation of scientists who have advocated long term studies of human development in an interdisciplinary context
