Substance Abuse During Pregnancy And Childhood:

Substance Abuse During Pregnancy and Childhood Roland R. Watson, 2012-12-06 Alcohol and other drugs of abuse cause significant physiological changes especially during development. The effects on the infant and child range from severe mental retardation to mild changes in activity and neurological functions. Although the level of intake needed to cause fetal damage is not clear, the magnitude of the problem is significant with many long term sequelae. As a result it becomes critical to better diagnose and manage drug and alcohol use during pregnancy. This must involve special training for health care professionals. In addition, recognition of the psychosocial factors affecting alcohol use especially by youth and young adults is critical to modifying behavior and thus reducing fetal alcohol exposure. Cultural considerations can also come into play in modifying alcohol and drug use by women so as to reduce fetal damage. The trends in alcohol and drug use by youth forecast rising levels of damage to infants. These children will need extensive medical and educational care for years to decades. Clearly understanding of the role women must take in modifying their alcohol and drug use during pregnancy will facilitate changes in our cultural and educational practices that will help reduce fetal trauma from alcohol. Maternal & Child
