Handbook of Child Psychopathology Thomas H. Ollendick, 2013-11-11 In our first edition of the Handbook in 1983 we noted that child psychopathology should no longer be viewed simply as a downward extension of adult psychopathology. Rather we suggested that children must be viewed as children not as miniature adults and that a merger of clinical child psychology and developmental psychology must occur in order for this objective to be realized. Now 6 years later we are sufficiently encouraged to assert that this synthesis at least on a conceptual level is well under way. Yet much growth remains to be seen along practical lines. The real test of the synthesis of these two fields of study will be evidenced on the battlefield that is the front line of clinical practice. Just how integrated clinical child psychology and developmental psychology really are remains to be seen. Nonetheless progress is well under way. Careful attention to developmental and other contextual issues guided us in our efforts to solicit contributors for this second edition. All the contributors are active researchers and clinicians in the area of child psychopathology and all are keenly aware of the subtle nuances and special considerations of clinical and developmental psychology as they relate to child behavior problems. In addition all the contributors are empirically minded as a result the chapters are data based and represent some of the most up to date knowledge currently available. However as research based knowledge is more abundant and conclusive in some topic areas than in others the chapters vary in length and scope.

Enduring Bonds Mary Renck Jalongo, 2007-11-24 Mary Renck Jalongo Interpersonal relationships present an interesting paradox to the young child. Although human bonds are a source of love security and joy they are at the same time the context in which children feel intense and complicated emotions such as jealousy shame resentment sorrow and rage. To illustrate consider a series of incidents in the life of a young child named Melissa. All of these events were so memorable that they became oft repeated family stories. At age 4 after Melissa was reprimanded by her mother she packed a small plastic suitcase and announced that she was running away. Her mother kept a watchful eye while the preschooler stood at the end of the driveway for several moments. The child's sister eight years her senior decided to go out and gently inquire about her younger sibling's plans to which Melissa responded ruefully I can't run away. I remembered that I'm not allowed to cross the street by myself. Months later Melissa enters kindergarten and she arrives home at the end of her school day obviously upset. When asked about it she says One of the kids told me I was doing my work wrong and it ruined my whole day. In first grade Melissa has experience with one of the school child's greatest fears a mean teacher.
