The Theory of Technological Change and Economic Growth Dr Stanislaw Gomulka,2006-12-05 In this wide ranging exposition of the various economic theories of technological change Stanislaw Gomulka relates them to rates of growth experienced by different economies in both the short and the long term Analysis of countries as diverse as Japan the Soviet Union and the United Kingdom demonstrates that there is an interdependence between technological change and the institutional and cultural characteristics of different countries which can have a profound effect on their rates of growth All of the major relevant models are discussed including those of Kuznets and Phelps but throughout the emphasis is on the creation of a unified theoretical framework to help explain the impact of technological progress on both a micro and a macro scale Labour Issues in the Context of Economic Integration and Free Trade Willi Momm, 1999 Compromises 19 papers grouped under four themes Globalization and labour market restructuring Labour issues in hemispheric integration and possible policy implications for the Caribbean The role of fundamental labour standards and the issue of flexibility and The labour dimension of economic integration policy positions Restructuring of Arms Production in Western Europe Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 1992 Profound changes are occurring in the structure of arms production in Western Europe Concentration is increasing at a fast pace Small producers are disappearing and even large ones are opting out of the market The various national arms industries long operating in protective environments are rapidly internationalizing Three factors combine to bring about this change East West detente the creation of the Single European Market and the constant pressure of increasingly complex technology In this book experts describe how the framework for producing arms in Western Europe is altered and how various actors firms governments and trade unions are adapting to the new situation The book presents detailed analyses of all the arms producing countries in Western Europe In addition to describing recent changes the authors speculate on the implications of these for the balance of power in Western Europe the relations between Western Europe and the United States arms exports to the Third World and problems of converting from military to civilian production The appendices include the SIPRI list of the 50 largest arms producing companies in Western Europe data on mergers and acquisitions procurement expenditure and exports of major weapons selections from treaties and other official documents relevant to current and future regulation of West European arms production and a select bibliography The Diplomatic Making of EU-China Relations Lucie Qian Xia, 2024-04-11 This book provides a novel theoretical framework to understand EU China diplomatic relations The existing scholarly literature on EU China relations is characterised by a dichotomous distinction between material and ideational factors and overemphasises the interest versus value motif undergirding EU China relations The diplomacy and future direction of the relationship seem as opaque as their extent remains incalculably complex This book takes us beyond binary motives by introducing a novel theoretical model of diplomatic relationship building that brings to the fore the more nuanced and latent factors to make sense of EU China diplomatic relationship building the new theory captures the relational nature of diplomatic relationship building by integrating the social layer of intentions in understanding international diplomacy This study further sheds light on the opportunities and challenges in enhancing EU China relations through a comparative in depth investigation of the processes practices and politics of EU China climate change and agricultural trade relations over the past two decades The book draws on a rich collection of original data encompassing over 100 interviews with stakeholders of EU China relations conducted from 2015-2023 strengthened by participant observation at EU and Chinese institutional headquarters and in diplomatic fora that has taken place over the past ten years. Enriching these data are newly disclosed official minutes and documentation regarding EU-China negotiations and cooperation. This book will be of much interest to students of diplomacy studies, Chinese politics, EU politics and international relations in general.

Immigrants and the Industries of London, 1500-1700 Lien Bich Luu, 2017-03-02. Immigration is not only a modern-day debate. Major change in Europe in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries led to a surge of political and religious refugees moving across the continent. Estimates suggest that from 1550 to 1585 around 50,000 Dutch and Walloons from the southern Netherlands settled in England and in the late seventeenth century 50,000 Huguenots from France followed suit. The majority gravitated towards London, which already a magnet for merchants and artisans across the centuries began a process of major transformation. New skills, capital, technical know-how and social networks came with these migrants and helped to spark London's cosmopolitan flair and diversity. But the early experience of many of these immigrants in London was one of hostility, serving to slow down the adoption and expansion of new crafts and technologies.

Immigrants and the Industries of London, 1500-1700 examines the origins and the changing face and shape of many trades, crafts and skills in the capital in this transformative period. It focuses on three crafts in particular: silk weaving, beer brewing and the silver trade, crafts which had relied heavily on foreign skills in the 16th century and had become major industries in the capital by the 18th century. Each craft was established by a different group of immigrants, distinguished not only by their social backgrounds, social organisation, identity, motives, migration pattern and experience and links with their home country but also by the nature of their reception, assimilation and economic contribution. Change was a protracted process in the London of the day. Immigrants endured inferior status, discrimination and sometimes exclusion, and this affected both their ability to integrate and their willingness to share trade secrets. And resistance by the English population meant that the adoption of new skills often took a long time; in some cases more than three centuries to complete. The book places the adoption of new crafts and technologies in London within a broader European context and relates it to the phenomenal growth of the metropolis and technological developments within these specific trades. It throws new perspectives on the movement of skills from Europe and the transmission of know-how from the immigrant population to English artisans. The book explores how, through enterprise and persistence, the immigrants' contribution helped transform London from a peripheral and backward European city to become the workshop of the world by the nineteenth century. By way of conclusion, the book brings the current immigration debate full circle to examine the lessons we can draw from this early modern experience.

ECIE 2018 13th European Conference on Innovation and Entrepreneurship Professor Carlos Costa, Dr. Manuel Au-Yong-Oliveira, Dr. Marlene Paula Castro Amorim, 2018-09-20. Knowledge Flows, Technological Change and Regional Growth in the European Union Małgorzata Runiewicz-Wardyn, 2013-06-14. The book provides conceptual and empirical insights into the complex relationship between knowledge flows and regional growth in the EU The author critically scrutinizes and enhances the RIS Regional Innovation System approach discussing innovation as a technological institutional and evolutionary process Moreover she advances the ongoing discourse on the role of space and technological proximity in the process of innovation and technological externalities The book closes with an investigation of the role of technological change and knowledge spillovers in the dynamic growth and catching up of EU regions

The Japanese Industrial Economy Ian Inkster, 2012-11-12 This book reveals that the manipulation of culture was of more importance than the character of the original cultural stock in explaining Japan's modern industrialization Thus the features of private enterprise culture that are so often isolated as keys to the nation's historical competitiveness may have been only temporary reflections of this wider process of cultural engineering a necessary input into the program of technology transfer and late development This book provides a highly reliable guide to the industrial economy and history and covers a wide ground it will be of great interest to those involved in Asian studies Japanese studies plus economists and professionals in business and enterprise culture

Catching Up And Falling Behind: Post-communist Transformation In Historical Perspective David A Dyker, 2004-07-05 In this collection of essays David A Dyker explores some of the most difficult and fascinating aspects of the process of transition from autocratic real socialism to a capitalism that is sometimes democratic sometimes authoritarian The stress is on the economic dimension of transformation but the author sets the economic drama firmly within a political economy framework and a historical perspective Trends in key economic variables are analysed against the background of the struggle between different social and political groups for power and command over resources While the book pays due attention to topical issues like EU enlargement the underlying perspective is a long term one Transition is viewed not as a set of once and for all institutional changes or a process of short term stabilisation but as a historic opportunity to solve the inherited problem of poverty and underdevelopment in Central East Europe and the former Soviet Union The book ends with a critical assessment of how economics as a discipline has coped with the challenge of that historic opportunity

Industrial Change and Regional Economic Transformation Lloyd Rodwin, Hidehiko Sazanami, 2017-08-22 Originally published in 1991 This book deals with industrial and regional changes in Western Europe and the effectiveness of policies designed to cope with them It examines the regional experiences including successes as well as problems to illuminate the trends and policies raises questions about the issues and reports on the effects and further implications for not just Europe but Japan and many newly industrializing countries Analysing the evolution and effectiveness of local regional national and European policies this is of interest for industrial and development specialists as well as economists planners geographers and policy makers
