Rewriting Texts Remaking Images Leslie Anne Boldt-Irons, Corrado Federici, Ernesto Virgulti, 2010 The twenty four essays in Rewriting Texts Remaking Images Interdisciplinary Perspectives examine the complex relationships between original creative works and subsequent versions of these originals from both theoretical and pragmatic perspectives The process involves the rereading reinterpretation and rediscovery of literary texts paintings photographs and films as well as the consideration of issues pertaining to adaptation intertextuality transcodification ekphrasis parody translation and revision The interdisciplinary analyses consider works from classical antiquity to the present day in a number of literatures and include such topics as the reuse and resemantization of photographs and iconic images Handbook of

Phenomenological Aesthetics Hans Rainer Sepp, Lester Embree, 2010-03-11 Historically phenomenology began in Edmund Husserl's theory of mathematics and logic went on to focus for him on transcendental first philosophy and for others on metaphysics philosophical anthropology and theory of interpretation The continuing focus has thus been on knowledge and being But if one began without those interests and with an understanding of the phenomenological style of approach one might well see that art and aesthetics make up the most natural field to be approached phenomenologically Contributions to this field have continually been made in the phenomenological tradition from very early on but so to speak along the side The situation has been similar with phenomenological ethics A great deal of thought about art and aesthetics has nevertheless accumulated during a century and a handbook like the present one is long overdue The project of this handbook began in conversations over dinner in Sepp's apartment in Baden Baden at one evening of the hot European summer in the year 2003 As things worked out he knew more about whom to ask and how much space to allocate to each entry and Embree knew more about how to conduct the inviting preliminary editing and prodding of contributors who were late returning their criticized drafts and copyedited entries and was able to invest the time and other resources from his endowed chair That process took longer than anticipated and there were additional unfortunate delays due to factors beyond the editors' control

Photography in Children's Literature Elina Druker, Bettina Kümmerling-Meibauer, 2023-10-15 Photography in Children's Literature is the first study that examines the wide array of artistic techniques topics and genres used within photographic books for children Covering a time period from the 1870s to the 1980s the collection offers multifaceted insights into changing perceptions of children and childhood during an era when the world changed in unprecedented ways More than sixty full color illustrations demonstrate an impressive variety of genres from ABC books concept books and country portraits to photo reportage and poetry By discussing photographic books from ten countries and three continents the collection offers an international scope providing a glimpse into the production and reception of photography in children's literature in a range of contexts and cultures Photographic books for children thus open up new vistas for scholars interested in an interdisciplinary and transnational investigation of children's literature text and images across the centuries

The Photography of Crisis Daniel H. Magilow, 2012 Examines photo essays from Weimar Germany's many social crises. Traces photography's emergence as a new language that German photographers used to intervene in modernity's key political and philosophical debates changing notions of nature and culture, national and personal identity, and the viability of parliamentary democracy.

Text Into Image, 1997 Text into Image: Image into Text is a truly interdisciplinary publication. Whilst all of the contributions focus upon the central problem of the relationship between literature and the visual arts, one which has lost nothing of its fascination as the debate has expanded in numerous forms from antiquity into the realm of postmodern theory, they come from contributors working in a large number of different areas. Represented are academics from the worlds of German Studies, French Studies, English Studies, Art History, and Film Studies. Given their backgrounds, each of the contributors can offer a different perspective upon the core issue of translation between media, but perhaps most valuable is the combination of perspectives made possible by the arrangement of the volume into sections dealing with aspects of the image-text debate. In the same way that the volume gains by ranging across traditional disciplinary boundaries, so it also gains from dealing with a wide range of historical material, from to take only one possible route: Baroque iconography through Romantic imagery to Expressionist agony.

The American Amateur Photographer, 1902 The Photographic Times, 1911 Picturing the Language of Images Laurence Petit, 2014-04-11 Picturing the Language of Images is a collection of thirty-three previously unpublished essays that explore the complex and ever-evolving interaction between the verbal and the visual. The uniqueness of this volume lies in its bringing together scholars from around the world to provide a broad synchronic and diachronic exploration of the relationship between text and image, as well as a reflection on the limits of representation through a rethinking of the very acts of reading and viewing. While covering a variety of media such as literature, painting, photography, film, and comics across time from the 18th century to the 21st century, this collection also provides a special focus on the work of particular authors such as A. S. Byatt, W. G. Sebald, and Art Spiegelman.

Being Ethnographic Raymond Madden, 2010-04-16 Full of practical how-to tips for applying theoretical methods, doing ethnography, this book also provides anecdotal evidence and advice for new and experienced researchers on how to engage with their own participation in the field, being ethnographic. The book clearly sets out the important definitions, methods, and applications of field research whilst reinforcing the infinite variability of the human subject and addressing the challenges presented by ethnographers' own passions, intellectual interests, biases, and ideologies. Classic and personal real-world case studies are used by the author to introduce new researchers to the reality of applying ethnographic theory and practice in the field. Topics include Talking to People, negotiations, conversations, interviews, Being with People, participation, Looking at People, observations, images, Description, writing down field notes, Analysis to Interpretation, writing out data, Interpretation to Story, writing up ethnography. Clear, engaging, and original, this book provides invaluable advice as well as practical tools and study aids for those engaged in ethnographic research.

Negating the Image Jeffrey Johnson, 2017-07-05 Why do people attack monuments and other public objects charged with authority by the societies that produced them What do open assaults on images and artworks mean Iconoclasm the principled destruction of images has recurred throughout human history as theory and practice This book contains seven historical studies of the changing causes and meanings of iconoclasm and the radical transformations in the function of images it has brought about in societies around the world from Ancient Egypt to Islamic India and Revolutionary Mexico as well as Medieval and Reformation Europe Scholars of art history history and archaeology explore shifting definitions of art and the forms of representation in delineating varied forms of iconoclasm

The Journal of the Linnean Society of London ,1917 Rethinking Diasporas Kevin Howard,Aoileann Ní

Éigeartaigh,2008-12-18 Central to the aim of both this book is to rethink the concept of diaspora as it is used both academically and popularly at the beginning of the twenty first century It seeks to interrogate the notion of diaspora in an interdisciplinary way and to explore the contradictions inherent in contemporary notions of place and identity It presents explorations of both traditional diasporas such as the Irish community in the United States and in Great Britain as well as recently established diasporas being formed through new patterns of migration and resettlement Traditional conceptions of diaspora focused on forced exile from the homeland and the adoption of conscious strategies of integration upon arrival in the new land In the past it was assumed that migrants would rapidly assimilate into their receiving societies Alternatively migrant workers were regarded by themselves and their host societies as sojourners they were not expected to integrate precisely because their alien presence was perceived to be temporary Two poles then framed the traditional interpretation of migration and settlement On the one hand migrants assimilated rapidly on the other migrants were temporarily in the host land Yet the realisation both that the melting pot is a myth and that migrant workers do not in the main go home has forced an increasing acceptance of ethnic diversity This combined with ongoing improvements in travel and communications technologies facilitates today's migrants in maintaining links with their home countries The increased visibility of transnational ethnic communities and a resurgence in labour migration in the twenty first century have stimulated academic interest in both contemporary diasporas and in recovering the hidden narratives of earlier global migrations The renewed interest in the formation and narrative of diasporas is evident across a range of disciplines Moreover the meaningful exploration of any aspect of the humanities and social sciences requires an interdisciplinary approach Thus is the aim of this volume Contributors approach the issue of diaspora from a variety of academic backgrounds sociology politics history literature and the visual arts Concomitantly data sources are diverse with contributors drawing on official government publications literary sources and personal memoirs paintings and photographs popular culture and personal interviews This diversity of data sources indicates the multifarious approaches to the exploration diaspora More importantly it highlights the critical role played by unofficial and often hidden narratives in representing the experiences of those who find themselves through a variety of political social and economic factors displaced This edited collection is a timely and precocious answer to a gap in the literature of identities and nationhood It is a response to the new challenges and opportunities facing diasporic communities and what is more sets out key pointers for rethinking diaspora in the twenty first century At a time when western states are facing the need to re evaluate traditional responses to ethnic difference arising from migration in the mid twentieth century this book posits an important perspective on the multiculturalism debate Contrary to previous political and scholarly assumptions this book shows that the children and grandchildren of immigrants can continue to have an ambiguous relationship to the state in which they were born in part because of the very nature of diaspora The enduringly complex and sometimes volatile insider outsider relationship is explored in these chapters through analysis of various narratives in textual spoken and visual forms Analysis of such hidden narratives reveals that the meaning and pertinence of membership of a diasporic community is defined as much by the context of the host country as by the discourses of the homeland Across their various sources and case studies the authors demonstrate the power of the juncture between dominant national discourses of the host state and the identity of its immigrants Each author notes how different the diasporic community in question would be not to mention the impact on its relationship to the host state and the homeland if some of narratives hidden over time were to be reclaimed As one author puts it flux in elements of identity formation in postmodern society represents a chance to engage in dialogue with our own diversity In constructing a coherent volume from such a diverse range of cases and disciplines the editors successfully demonstrate the wide validity of their case for rethinking diasporas Nonetheless the specific origins of this book a conference held in a border town in Ireland are it may be argued uniquely significant For the current process of change in Irish national identity is inseparable from central features of diaspora formation that the authors highlight including economic pressures Moreover just as the town of Dundalk has historically felt the effects of its proximity to Northern Ireland so the imagined borders of diaspora explored in this book are shown to be all the more powerful for the fact that their delineation is contested Katy Hayward Institute for British Irish Studies UCD The Amateur Photographer & Cinematographer ,1928 Photographic Times ,1911 Travel Narratives from the Age of Discovery Peter C. industrial pollution By providing a definition of environmental activism in photographic praxis and identifying influential practitioners this publication demonstrates that photography plays a vital role in the struggle against environmental despoliation This book will be of interest to scholars in photography art and visual culture environmental humanities and the history of photography
