again departed sailing again through the Adriatic Upon reaching Venice Cooper was so struck by the architecture that he was inspired to write the novel that would become The Bravo Plot In The Bravo Cooper uses lightness and darkness to paint the scenes However unlike some of his other books The Bravo is predominated by dark settings and language Following his political themes the official political powers in the novel are often draped in dark settings In this context the few chapters which present Venice as brightly lit depict daylight as a hypocritical false front However Moonlight unlike sunlight and artificial lighting illuminates scenes of hope to overcome the dark official Venice Themes The Bravo deals with many political themes Cooper would later explain that he wrote the novel because the great political contest of the age was not as is usually pre tended between the two antagonist principles of monarchy and democracy but in reality between those who under the shallow pre tence of limiting power to the elite of society were contending for exclusive advantages at the expense of the mass of their fellow creature 1 He saw under Europe s old order and lush surface an oppressive social order without any sense of divine law in nature which sat in antithesis to America s unexplored wilderness and less structured society To Cooper Venice s government is unable to meet the demands of its citizens even representing its aristocrats as victims James Fenimore Cooper September 15 1789 September 15 1851 was a prolific and popular American writer of the early 19th century His historical romances of frontier and Indian life in the early American days created a unique form of American literature He lived most of his life in Cooperstown New York which was founded by his father William on property that he owned Cooper was a lifelong member of the Episcopal Church and in his later years contributed generously to it He attended Yale University for three years where he was a member of the Linonian Society but was expelled for misbehavior The Bravo (Annotated) James Fenimore Cooper,2016-07-02 The Bravo is a novel by James Fenimore Cooper first published in 1831 in three volumes Inspired by a trip to Europe where he traveled through much of Italy the novel is set in Venice The Bravo is the first of Cooper s three novels to be set in Europe This group of three novels which one critic would call Cooper s European trilogy include The Heidenmauer and The Headsman Like his other novels set in Europe The Bravo was not very well received in the United States The book largely focuses on political themes especially the tension between the social elite and other classes The Bravo James Fenimore Cooper,2017-02-09 The Bravo is a novel by James Fenimore Cooper first published in 1831 in three volumes Inspired by a trip to Europe where he traveled through much of Italy the novel is set in Venice The Bravo is the first of Cooper s three novels to be set in Europe This group of three novels which one critic would call Cooper s European trilogy include The Heidenmauer and The Headsman Like his other novels set in Europe The Bravo was not very well received in the United States The book largely focuses on political themes especially the tension between the social elite and other classes Background In 1829 1830 Cooper toured Italy with his wife and family Starting in Florence where he spent considerable time absorbing the Tuscan culture Cooper departed on a sailing trip around Italy visiting many historic cities including Genoa Marseilles and much of Southern Italy In Sorrento Cooper finished Water Witch after which he
