into many aspects of the artist's mature oeuvre. Drawing on copious archival research, Senf traces the first three decades of Adams's photographic practice beginning with an amateur album made during his childhood and culminating with his Guggenheim supported National Parks photography of the 1940s. Highlighting the artist's persistence in forging a career path and his remarkable ability to learn from experience as he sharpened his image making skills, this beautifully illustrated volume also looks at the significance of the artist's environmentalism including his involvement with the Sierra Club. A History of Canadian Literature W.H. New, 2003-08-06 New offers an unconventionally structured overview of Canadian literature from Native American mythologies to contemporary texts. Publishers Weekly: A History of Canadian Literature looks at the work of writers and the social and cultural contexts that helped shape their preoccupations and direct their choice of literary form. W. H. New explains how from early records of oral tales to the writing strategies of the early twenty-first century, writer, reader, literature, and society are interrelated. New discusses both Aboriginal and European mythologies looking at pre-Contact narratives and also at the way Contact experience altered hierarchies of literary value. He then considers representations of the real, whether in documentary, fantasy, or satire, historical romance, and the social construction of Nature and State, and ironic subversions of power, the politics of cultural form, and the relevance of the media to a representation of community, standard, and individual voice. New suggests some ways in which writers of the later twentieth century codified such issues as history, gender, ethnicity, and literary technique itself. In this second edition, he adds a lengthy chapter that considers how writers at the turn of the twenty-first century have reimagined their society and their roles within it, and an expanded chronology and bibliography. Some of these writers have spoken from and about various social margins dealing with issues of race, status, ethnicity, and sexuality; some have sought emotional understanding through strategies of history and memory; some have addressed environmental concerns, and some have reconstructed the world by writing across genres and across different media. All genres are represented with examples chosen primarily but not exclusively from anglophone and francophone texts. A chronology, plates, and a series of tables supplement the commentary. Canada in Pictures Eric Braun, 2003-01-01 A historical and current look at Canada, discussing the land, the government, the culture, the people, and the economy. Canadian Reference Sources Mary E. Bond, Martine M. Caron, 1996 This bibliography cites those Canadian and foreign reference sources that describe Canadian people, institutions, organizations, publications, art, literature, languages, and history. It lists books of a general nature as well as works in the disciplines of history and the humanities. These large divisions are then broken down by subject, genre, type of document, and province or territory. Titles of national, provincial, territorial, or regional interest are included in every subject area when available. The contents of the book are indexed four ways: by name, title, French subject, and English subject. And to facilitate browsing, the major reference books, those dealing with more than one subject or a large geographical region, are also cross-referenced. Two entries have been created for each bilingual document in order to provide access and bibliographical descriptions in both of Canada's official languages. Entries for unilingual works include citation in the language of the publication and a bilingual annotation. The annotations are descriptive and provide information on the content, arrangements, and indexing of works, the availability of non-print formats, previous editions, and title changes and related works. Canadian Reference Sources will be an invaluable reference tool for future scholars and researchers.
