From Dreams to Disillusionment Glen O'Hara, 2006-11-14 From Dreams to Disillusionment is the first book to cover the planning experiment of the 1960s in full historical detail. Other countries' planners made the approach seem successful, however the experiment eventually failed, doomed to disappointment given unrealistic expectations, lack of time and an overburdened government.

Britain's Economy Aubrey Jones, 1985-11-21 It has long been recognised that Britain has declined relatively to other countries, although there are differences of view both on the beginning of the decline and its causes. The author pinpoints two causes: first, a technological inferiority which has resulted in the country's exporting goods of poorer quality and importing goods of higher quality; secondly, the tendency for an upward pressure on incomes from a society of political equals where each individual has expectations of a level of income reasonably comparable with others. The claims of different groups are easily accommodated in a semi-monopolistic industrial structure and are passed on in higher prices. Keynes recognised the latter problem of cost push, but his intellectual revolution was not accompanied by a change of institutions which continued to act in accordance with an earlier tradition. The present Government has reached a false diagnosis in ascribing the country's problems to too much money. It has therefore worsened the situation and weakened such hopes as there were of improvement.

British Railways 1948-73 T. R. Gourvish, N. Blake, 1986 Originally published in 1986, this is a business history of the first twenty-five years of nationalised railways in Britain. Commissioned by the British Railways Board and based on the Board's extensive archives, it fully analyses the dynamics of nationalised industry, management and the complexities of the vital relationship with government. After exploring the origins of nationalisation, the book deals with the organisation, financial performance, investment and commercial policies of the British Transport Commission, 1948-53, and the British Railways Board, 1963-73. Calculations of profit and loss, investment and productivity are provided on a consistent basis for 1948-73. This business history thus represents a major contribution not only to the debate about the role of the railways in a modern economy but also to that concerning the nationalised industries which have proved to be one of the most enduring problems of the British economy since the war.

Bufton, 2004-06-30 This volume examines attempted changes to industrial relations in Britain during 1948 1990 designed to promote institutional reforms of management and trade unions Specific focus is given to the Donovan Commission and other trade union reforms and incomes policies to connect pay more tightly with productivity International initiatives of the AACP BPC and EPA are also included Managing the Economy, Managing the People Jim Tomlinson, 2017 This study offers a distinctive new account of British economic life since the Second World War focussing upon the ways in which successive governments in seeking to manage the economy have sought simultaneously to manage the people to try and manage popular understanding of economic issues In doing so governments have sought not only to shape expectations for electoral purposes but to construct broader narratives about how the economy should be understood The starting point of this work is to ask why these goals have been focussed upon and differentially over time how they have been constructed to appeal to the population and insofar as this can be assessed how far the population has accepted these narratives The first half of the book analyses the development of the major narratives from the 1940s onwards addressing the notion of austerity and its particular meaning in the 1940s the rise of a narrative of economic decline from the late 1950s and the subsequent attempts to modernize the economy the attempts to roll back the state from the 1970s the impact of ideas of globalization in the 1990s and finally the way the crisis of 2008 9 onward was constructed as a problem of debts and deficits The second part of the book focuses on four key issues in attempts to manage the people productivity the balance of payments inflation and unemployment It shows how in each case governments sought to get the populace to understand these issues in a particular light and shaped strategies to that end
