Spectacles of Reform Amy E. Hughes, 2012-12-17

In the nineteenth century, long before film and television brought us explosions, car chases, and narrow escapes, it was America's theaters that thrilled audiences with sensation scenes of speeding trains, burning buildings, and endangered bodies, often in melodramas extolling the virtues of temperance, abolition, and women's suffrage. Amy E. Hughes scrutinizes these peculiar intersections of spectacle and reform, revealing the crucial role that spectacle has played in American activism and how it has remained central to the dramaturgy of reform. Hughes traces the cultural history of three famous sensation scenes: the drunkard with the delirium tremens, the fugitive slave escaping over a river, and the victim tied to the railroad tracks, assessing how these scenes conveyed, allayed, and denied concerns about the rights and responsibilities of citizenship. These images also appeared in printed propaganda, suggesting that the coup de théâtre was an essential part of American reform culture. Additionally, Hughes argues that today's producers and advertisers continue to exploit the affective dynamism of spectacle, reaching an even broader audience through film, television, and the Internet. To be attuned to the dynamics of spectacle, Hughes argues, is to understand how we see. Her book will interest not only theater historians but also scholars and students of political, literary, and visual culture who are curious about how U.S.

Fabricating the Body Effects of Obligation and Exchange in Contemporary Discourse is comprised of nine chapters that revolve around the body and more specifically issues related to identity The text draws on a variety of criticism including disability gender and psychoanalytic studies to theorize aspects relevant to the human body historically For example Rachel Herzl Betz s A Paratactic Missing Link Dorian Gray and the Performance of Embodied Modernity uses disability studies as a lens through which to examine Oscar Wilde s literary debt to the atavistic discourse of late Victorian freak shows Moving forward in time Melissa Ames s chapter Bodies of Debt Interrogating the Costs of Technological Progress Scientific Advancement and Social Conquests through Dystopian Literature is a pedagogy focused chapter In the chapter Ames discusses a college course in which she asked students to consider contemporary debates such as cloning stem cell research human trafficking and so forth in tandem with fictional texts that relate these issues Ultimately the class wrestled with the question of what do we do when human survival and societal progress come at extreme costs As a whole the text works to stimulate conversations surrounding the body and specifically bodies that can be labeled indebted Fabricating the Body brings together issues of gender class and identity and investigates ethical concerns along with topics related to marginalization and the mind body split Ultimately the text situates the body as a productive space for academic research
