Shaw, 1992 This book is mainly concerned with the geomorphological aspects of caves karst hydrology speleogenesis and the origin of speleothems Cave exploration was a necessary prerequisite for such studies and its progress is traced from prehistoric times to the systematic regional investigations of the 17th century and later. The first extensive work was in Slovenia, stimulated by the practical importance there of karst hydrology for water supply and flood control. Large karst springs had long attracted attention and several hypotheses had already been advanced according to some they were supplied by water raised from the sea, others explained them by condensation and finally their source as rainfall was accepted. The study of intermittent karst lakes led eventually to the postulation of what amounted to a water table. A true understanding of speleogenesis and the origin of speleothems depended on a knowledge of the chemistry of limestone solution which in its turn depended on the rejection of phlogiston at the end of the 18th century. Before that time only mechanical erosion was normally conceived as a means of removing particles of solid rock and subsequently redepositing them to form speleothems, although a few people earlier in the century had involved an unspecified aerial acid. There were also several more primitive theories including the formation of caves by tectonic catastrophes, by erosion as the water of Noah's Flood drained back underground and the inflation of cavities in still soft limestone by decomposition gases. For many years speleothems were thought to possess a low form of life growing like plants rather than by accretion. After the action of carbon dioxide in speleogenesis was appreciated a new question arose whether caves could be formed in the saturated zone or whether they were due solely to vadose water. For many years the problem was not recognised but violent controversy was taking place over it by the end of the 19th century.

Cave Ralph Crane, Lisa Fletcher, 2015-04-15 Shortlisted for the Tratman Award 2015 To enter caves is to venture beyond the realm of the everyday. From huge vaulted caverns to impassable water-filled passages from the karst topography of Guilin in China to the lava tubes of Hawaii from tiny remote pilgrimage sites to massive tourism enterprises, caves are places of mystery. Dark spaces that remain largely unexplored, caves are astonishing wonders of nature and habitats for exotic flora and fauna. This book investigates the natural and cultural history of caves and considers the roles caves have played in the human imagination and experience of the natural world. It explores the long history of the human fascination with caves across countries and continents, examining their dual role as spaces of both wonder and fear. It tells the tales of the adventurers who pioneered the science of caves and those of the explorers and cave divers still searching for new unmapped routes deep into the earth. This book explores the lure of the subterranean world by examining caving and cave tourism and by looking to the mythology, literature and art of caves. This lavishly illustrated book will appeal to general readers and experts alike interested in the ecology and use of caves or the extraordinary artistic responses earth's dark recesses have evoked over the centuries.

The Longest Cave Roger W. Brucker, Richard A. Watson, 1987-02-16 In 1925 the geological connection between Flint Ridge and Mammoth Cave was proved when dye placed in a Flint Ridge spring showed up in Echo River at Mammoth Cave. That tantalizing swirl of dye confirmed speculations that were to tempt more than 650 cavers over half a century with the thrill of being the first to make human passage of the cave connection. Roger Brucker and Richard Watson tell not only of their own twenty-year effort to complete the link but the stories of many others who worked their way through mud choked crawlways less than a foot high only to find impenetrable blockages Floyd Collins died a grisly death in nearby Sand Cave in 1925 after being trapped there for 15 days The wide press coverage of the rescue efforts stirred the imagination of the public and his body was on macabre display in a glass topped coffin in Crystal Cave into the 1940s Agents of a rival cave owner once even stole his corpse which was recovered and still is in a coffin in the cave Modern cavers still have a word with Floyd as they start their downward treks Brucker and Watson joined the parade of cavers who propelled themselves by wiggling kneecaps elbows and toes through quarter mile long crawlways clinging by fingertips and boot toes across mud slick walls over bottomless pits into gurgling streams beneath stone ceilings that descend to water level down crumbling crevices and up mountainous rockfalls into wondrous domed halls and straight ahead into a blackness intensified rather than dispelled by the carbide lamps on their helmets Over two decades they explored the passages with others who sought the final connection as vigorously as themselves Pat Crowther a young mother of two joined them and because of her thinness became the member of the crew to go first into places no human had ever gone before In that role in July 1972 she wiggled her way through the Tight Spot and found the route that would link the Flint Ridge and Mammoth Cave systems into one cave extending 144.4 miles through the Kentucky limestone In a new afterword to this edition the authors summarize the subsequent explorations that have more than doubled the established length of the cave system Based upon geological evidence the authors predict that new discoveries will add another 200 miles to the length of the world's longest cave making it over 500 miles long

The Caves of Burnsville Cove, Virginia William B. White, 2015-04-20 This book highlights some of the most difficult and persistent exploration ever undertaken in the United States in Burnsville Cove a small limestone valley in west central Virginia while at the same time reviewing the scientific discoveries made in the area's 116 km of caves in the course of 50 years Overall the book offers a unique combination of exploration and science by a conservation organization specifically dedicated to the preservation and study of the caves

Studies of Cave Sediments Ira D. Sasowsky, John Mylroie, 2012-12-06 John E Mylroie and Ira D Sasowsky Caves occupy incongruous positions in both our culture and our science The oldest records of modern human culture are the vivid cave paintings from southern France and northern Spain which are in some cases more than 30 000 years old Chauvet et al 1996 Yet to call someone a caveman is to declare them primitive and ignorant Caves being cryptic and mysterious occupied important roles in many cultures For example Greece a country with abundant karst had the oracle at Delphi and Hades the god of death working from caves People are both drawn to and mortified by caves Written records of cave exploration exist from as early as 852 BC Shaw 1992 In the decade of the 1920s which was rich in news events the second biggest story as measured by column inches of newsprint was the entrapment of Floyd Collins in Sand Cave Kentucky USA This was surpassed only by Lindbergh's flight across the Atlantic Murray and Brucker 1979
