The First Century After Beatrice:

The First Century After Beatrice Amin Maalouf, 1994 A French entomologist attending a symposium in Cairo finds a curious kind of bean being on a market stall It is claimed the beans derived from the scarab beetle have magic powers specifically the power to guarantee the birth of a male infant and when the entomologist does some research into the matter discovering the incidence of female birth has become increasingly rare he is left in no doubt that the world has entered into a critical phase of its history As this beloved daughter Beatrice approaches maturity the entomologist and his partner question the validity of gender bias and attempt to redress the growing imbalance before it reaches irreversible proportions But in the poverty and famine of the South where male children can mean the difference between survival and starvation the popularity of the scarab beans is already taking devastating effect Contemporary French and Francophone Futuristic Novels

Emmanuel Buzay, 2023-03-12 This book sheds a new light on the metafictional aspects of futuristic and science fiction novels at the crossroads of information and media studies possible worlds theories applied to cognitive narratology questions related to the criticism of post humanity and more broadly contemporary French and Francophone literature It examines the fictional minds of characters and their conceptions of resistance to the anticipated worlds they inhabit particularly in novels by Pierre Bordage Marie Darrieussecq Michel Houellebecq Amin Maalouf Jean Christophe Rufin Antoine Volodine and Elisabeth Vonarburg It also explores how corporal postures serve as a matrix for philosophical quests in novels by Amel Nothomb Alain Damasio and Romain Lucaceau More specifically from the fictional readers points of view it provides a critical approach to the mythologies of writing in the wake of the French philosophical tales by authors including Cyrano de Bergerac and Voltaire to question the traditionally expressed formulations of the mythologies of writing that is of the metaphors of the book the book of life nature and the world to rethink the idea of a humanity within its limits The First

Century After Beatrice Amin Maalouf, 1995 In the 21st Century a drug that guarantees the birth of boys originally developed to reduce Third World populations leads to a worldwide shortage of women The result is an explosion of male violence wars and the sale of women on the black market The narrator is a French entomologist trying to eradicate the drug Transnational Spaces and Identities in the Francophone World Hafid Gafa ti, Patricia M. E. Lorcin, David G. Troyansky, 2009-07-01 The dissolution of the French Empire and the ensuing rush of immigration have led to the formation of diasporas and immigrant cultures that have transformed French society and the immigrants themselves Transnational Spaces and Identities in the Francophone World examines the impact of this postcolonial immigration on identity in France and in the Francophone world which has encompassed parts of Africa the Middle East Southeast Asia and the Americas Immigrants bear cultural traditions within themselves transform host communities and are in turn transformed These migrations necessarily complicate ideals of national literature culture and history forcing a reexamination and a rearticulation of these ideals Exploring a variety of texts informed by these transnational conceptions of identity and space the contributors to this volume reveal the vitality of Francophone studies within a broad range of disciplines periods and settings They remind us that the idea and reality of Francophonie is not a late twentieth century phenomenon but something that grows out of long term interactions between colonizer and colonized and between peoples of different nationalities ethnicities and religions Truly interdisciplinary this collection engages conceptions of identity with respect to their physical geographic ethnic and imagined realities

Signposts Rajeswari Sunder Rajan,2001 The essays in this volume map the concerns of gender onto the terrain of nation finding significant connections disjunctions and tensions between them The authors argue that for any cultural analysis to be performed in the context of the decolonized nation space gender must take centre stage

The Demographic Masculinization of China Isabelle Attané,2013-06-26 This book describes the shortage of girls and women in present day China and focuses on two important features the sex imbalance in childhood and youth and the excess mortality of women at various stages of their life The author analyzes the causes and the processes of a strong preference for sons which generates discrimination toward females and results in a shortage of girls and women China s higher proportion of men than women is a population characteristic that is shared by very few countries in the world This demographic masculinity is unprecedented in the documented history of human populations both in scale and its lasting impact on the numbers and the structure of the population. Despite the economic boom of recent years, many families in China still consider girls to be less important than boys. Although Chinese women have become largely emancipated since the 1950s, they still do not have the same opportunities for social achievement as men, and Chinese society remains fundamentally rooted in highly gendered social and family roles. As a consequence, Chinese girl babies who have the misfortune to be born instead of a long-awaited son go by various names such as Pandi (literally awaiting a son), Laidi (a son will follow), or Yehao (she'll do too). The book provides a comprehensive review of the situation of women in China's society and shows that discrimination against girls and women is part of a system of norms and values that traditionally favours males. Unnatural Selection Mara Hvistendahl, 2011-06-07

Finalist for the Pulitzer Prize, A Slate Best Book of 2011, A Discover Magazine Best Book of 2011. Lianyungang, a booming port city, has China's most extreme gender ratio for children under four: 163 boys for every 100 girls. These numbers don't seem terribly grim, but in ten years the skewed sex ratio will pose a colossal challenge. By the time those children reach adulthood, their generation will have twenty-four million more men than women. The prognosis for China's neighbors is no less bleak. Asia now has 163 million females missing from its population. Gender imbalance reaches far beyond Asia, affecting Georgia, Eastern Europe, and cities in the U.S. where there are significant immigrant populations. The world therefore is becoming increasingly male, and this mismatch is likely to create profound social upheaval. Historically, eras in which there have been an excess of men have produced periods of violent conflict and instability. Mara Hvistendahl has written a stunning, impeccably researched book that does not flinch from examining not only the consequences of the misbegotten policies of sex selection but Western complicity with them. Postmodernism and The Other Ziauddin Sardar, 1998

Postmodernism has often been presented as a new theory of liberation that promotes pluralism and gives representation to the marginalised peoples of the non-west and other cultures. In this major assessment of postmodernism from a non-western perspective, Ziauddin Sardar offers a radical critique of this view. Covering the salient spheres of postmodernism from architecture, film, television, and pop music to philosophy, consumer lifestyles, and new age religions, Sardar reveals that postmodernism in fact operates to further marginalise the reality of the non-west and confound its aspirations. By tracing postmodernism's roots in colonialism and modernity, Sardar demonstrates that the dominant contemporary intellectual fashion peddling an insidiously oppressive and subtle revisionism is the most comprehensive onslaught on the non-west ever experienced. In stern retort, the author offers ways in which the peoples of the non-west can counter the postmodern assault and survive with their identities, histories, and cultures intact.
