Aneshensel, Jo C. Phelan, 2006-11-22 Within American society mental disorder is commonly understood as an attribute of the individual This intuitive understanding reflects the experiential reality that it is individuals who are beset by feelings of fear and despair confused by intrusive or jumbled thoughts addicted to drugs and so forth In this regard everyday thinking is consistent with contemporary psychiatry which also individualizes pathology increasingly in biological terms The contributors to this handbook collectively articulate an alternative vision one in which the individual experience of psychopathology is inextricably embedded within its social context This theme the interface between society and the inward experience of its constituents is developed here in a more encompassing manner than has been previously undertaken Although this perspective may seem self evident especially in a handbook on the sociology of mental health the widespread adoption of a medical model of aberrant states especially by sociologists has we submit obscured the relevance of social organization and processes

Caribbean Healing Traditions Patsy Sutherland, Roy Moodley, Barry

Chevannes, 2013-07-24 As Caribbean communities become more international clinicians and scholars must develop new paradigms for understanding treatment preferences and perceptions of illness Despite evidence supporting the need for culturally appropriate care and the integration of traditional healing practices into conventional health and mental health care systems it is unclear how such integration would function since little is known about the therapeutic interventions of Caribbean healing traditions Caribbean Healing Traditions Implications for Health and Mental Health fills this gap Drawing on the knowledge of prominent clinicians scholars and researchers of the Caribbean and the diaspora these healing traditions are explored in the context of health and mental health for the first time making Caribbean Healing Traditions an invaluable resource for students researchers faculty and practitioners in the fields of nursing counseling psychotherapy psychiatry social work youth and community development and medicine
