Phillips, 1968 The Flinders in Colour, 1982 A New Name for the Colour Blue Annette Marner, 2020-02-14 I still see her sometimes in my sleep She is walking through the blue and orange lights of the city or in the desert country of red ground spinifex and oaks Last night I dreamed she was climbing a green and blue mountain the kind you see in the tropics rich and heavy with steam and rain She is still only a girl in my dreams but that's how I remember her In every dream she is walking In every dream I call out her name Tania Ten years after the disappearance of her best friend and the death of her mother Cassandra Noble escapes her country childhood to pursue life as an artist in the city On the threshold of a promising career as a painter her creativity suddenly abandons her Soon after she finds herself with a lover who wishes to control her just as her father once did While her last painting just might hold the key to why she can no longer create what will happen when she discovers the two tragic events of her childhood are linked in ways she could never have imagined A New Name for the Colour Blue is a story of the healing power of remembering of love and the breathtaking beauty of the natural world The Red Cliffs Mary Mennis, 2009 The red cliffs at the modern day City of Redcliffe to the north of Brisbane have witnessed many changes since Matthew Flinders landed there in 1799 In those days the Ningy Ningy people of Redcliffe and Toorbul lived a traditional life hunting and fishing as their forefathers had done before them for thousands of years The first half of this novel describes their life Matthew Flinders noted the names of three of the people Yelbah Bomaringo and Yewoo and these are taken as the main characters in this book Their lives changed in 1823 when they welcomed the three castaways Thomas Pamphlett Richard Parsons and John Finnegan who had been blown off course in a storm These men had been collecting cedar for the Sydney Penal Colony and were eventually thrown ashore at Moreton Island After many privations they arrived at present day Redcliffe where they lived with the Aboriginals of the Ningy Ningy clan for three months Later they lived with the Joondobarrie clan on Bribie Island where they were rescued by John Oxley in November of the same year The Red Cliffs is a historical novel which describes the interaction of the Ningy Ningy and Joondobarrie people with these three castaways before they were rescued and when Pamphlett returned as a convict at the Moreton Bay Penal settlement in 1827 The convicts were viewed as outcasts of their society just as the tallabilla were outcasts of the Aboriginal society The red cliffs were known as the cliffs of running blood or Kau in Kau in by the Aboriginal people and these cliffs witnessed the shedding of the blood of the convicts and of their people South Australia in Colour Brian Carroll, 1974 The Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland, 1884 The Emu, 1918 The Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute, 1884 The Central Australian Expedition 1844-1846 / The Journals of Charles Sturt Charles Sturt, 2017-10-23 In August 1844 a heavily laden party led by Captain Charles Sturt set out from Adelaide to head into the unexplored vastness of central Australia Amongst their equipment was a boat as well as carrying out his mission of scientific investigation and mapping the topography Sturt was convinced he would find the inland sea that was reputed to lie in the middle of the continent and so make his reputation This is the first full publication of Sturt's original journals of the trip They record the hardships of the journeying through the parched landscape but also show how his efforts helped reveal the nature of much of the mysterious interior of Australia and how in a manner uncharacteristic of his times he established respectful and cooperative relations with the Aborigines he encountered along the way
