Policy, Experience and Change: Cross-Cultural Reflections on Inclusive Education Len Barton, Felicity Armstrong, 2007-02-08 One of the qualities of this book is the authors engagement with personal experience This is part of the contextualising of issues within particular cultural historical and social contexts I shall begin the Foreword in the same spirit by recounting an experience that is still a foundation for analysing and developing my own understanding This happened some twenty five years ago I was going with Vic Finkelstein a disabled academic and activist to a seminar on a hot summer s day making our way across the Open University campus in Milton Keynes The seminar was entitled The Problems of Integration Making conversation with Vic I suggested that the seminar sounded interesting His response was immediate and direct no it was not interesting the problems for disabled people were the problems of segregation not the problems of integration As he did often for me Vic turned understanding on its head and his seemingly simple observation carried ever increasing ripples of critical questioning Reading of international developments and of the specifics of education policy provision and practice across the widely differing circumstances found in different nation states from the majority as well as the minority world challenges deepens and confirms understanding There are not surprisingly considerable diversities and commonalities and recurring themes that speak to both and fire critical questioning The complexities pretty quickly give food for thought and ring bells of caution The first for me is the lack of digestion the impossibility of comprehensive knowledge

The Psychology of Blindness and Visual Culture Simon Hayhoe, 2025-06-27 The Psychology of Blindness and Visual Culture Towards a New Ecological Model of Visual Impairment advances the debate regarding the inclusion and wellbeing of people with visual impairment PVI through looking at the psychological nature of visual culture and its effects on the lived experience It explores whether it is possible to increase access to visual culture for PVI through language alternative sensory data or contemporary communication media and in so doing questions whether or not communication and culture are intrinsically visual Occupying a unique field of study by focusing on the understanding of visual culture and visual communication by PVI in real world settings this empirical book examines the difference between the understanding of visual culture and visual communication by PVI who acquire their visual impairments late in life and PVI who acquire their visual impairments early in life Understanding these concepts not only helps us to understand how PVI feel socially included in visual culture but also how culture and artifacts are conceptualized verbally culturally and through the senses It is compelling reading for advanced students of psychology and philosophy and those studying learning in cultural settings and in museum studies computer science disability studies education and fine art management
