Bormann, 1981 Microhistories of Communication Studies Pat Gehrke, 2018-04-19 The story of an academic discipline is usually conveyed in grand movements and long spans but it can also be told through the lives of individual scholars through the development of specialties through the creation and change of departments and through the formation and transformation of organizations Using twelve histories of micro dimensions of communication studies this volume shows how sometimes small decisions single scholars individual departments and marginalized voices can have dramatic roles in the history and future of an academic discipline As a compilation of micro histories with macro lessons this volume stands alone in communication studies Read as a companion to A Century of Communication Studies the National Communication Association s centennial volume it offers rich detail missing links and local narratives that fully flesh out the discipline In either case no education in communication studies is complete without an understanding of the themes challenges and triumphs embodied by the twelve micro histories offered in this book This book was originally published as two special issues of Review of Communication Catalog of Copyright Entries. Rhetorical Education In America Cheryl Jean Glenn,2009-03-15 A timely collection of essays by prominent scholars in the field on the past present and future of rhetoric instruction From Isocrates and Aristotle to the present rhetorical education has consistently been regarded as the linchpin of a participatory democracy a tool to foster civic action and social responsibility Yet questions of who should receive rhetorical education in what form and for what purpose continue to vex teachers and scholars The essays in this volume converge to explore the purposes problems and possibilities of rhetorical education in America on both the undergraduate and graduate levels and inside and outside the academy William Denman examines the ancient model of the citizen orator and its value to democratic life Thomas Miller argues that English departments have embraced a literary research paradigm and sacrificed the teaching of rhetorical skills for public participation Susan Kates explores how rhetoric is taught at nontraditional institutions such as Berea College in Kentucky where Appalachian dialect is espoused Nan Johnson looks outside the academy at the parlor movement among women in antebellum America Michael Halloran examines the rhetorical education provided by historical landmarks where visitors are encouraged to share a common public discourse Laura Gurak presents the challenges posed to traditional notions of literacy by the computer the promises and dangers of internet technology and the necessity of a critical cyber literacy for future rhetorical curricula Collectively the essays coalesce around timely political and cross disciplinary issues Rhetorical Education in America serves to orient scholars and teachers in rhetoric regardless of their disciplinary home and help to set an agenda for future classroom practice and curriculum design
