The First European Agriculture:

Europe's First Farmers T. Douglas Price, 2000-09-14 Essays by leading specialists on a central issue of European history the transition to farming Early European Agriculture British Academy. Major Research Project in the Early History of Agriculture, 1982-10-28 First printed in 1982 this is the third and final volume to be published as a result of the British Academy Major Research Project on the Early History of Agriculture carried out in the Department of Archaeology in Cambridge under the direction of the late Eric Higgs After his death in 1976 the Project was drawn to its conclusion by his associates and this book is effectively a summary of the results of the Project The first two volumes Papers in Economic Prehistory and Palaeoeconomy argued that the development of agriculture was a much more gradual and widespread phenomenon than had been thought previously This book now discusses the origins and early development of prehistoric agriculture within the framework of prehistoric subsistence economies in general Early human economies are viewed in their adaptation to three crucial resource zones the uplands the lowlands and the littorals The First European Agriculture Jacqueline Murray, 1970 European Agriculture Brian Gardner, 2006-04-10 The Common Agricultural Policy CAP is central to both economic and environmental developments in Europe But with the advent of new environmental legislation and political change in Europe the CAP faces increasing pressure to reform European Agriculture provides a comprehensive breakdown of the workings of the CAP and its impact on farming in Europe The author discusses every aspect of European agricultural policy production and trade from environmental constraints and the impact of biotechnology to the role of European farming in the world food supply system Posing direct questions about the recent 1992 agricultural reform the 1994 GATT agreement and the reasons for the expensive continuation of the CAP European Agriculture analyses the economic political and environmental implications of pursuing present farming policy and provides a provocative commentary on the agricultural future of Europe Production Rights in European Agriculture D. Barthelemy, J. David, 2001-05-21 Rather than simply cataloging the various interpretations of European regulations by Member States this international team examines the economic priorities the legal bases the social norms and cultural patterns which come into play presenting an analytical approach to the study of production rights in European agriculture This work traces the emergence and the economic and legal content of the different income support tools for agricultural producers collectively termed production rights and it looks at the foundations of the specific national conceptions underlying the methods of organising agricultural activity The book is intended for a varied readership farmers themselves of course but also economic legal and tax consultants experts lawyers notaries as well as students teachers and researchers It has been set out in such a way as to allow readers to move freely from one subject to another depending on whether their interest lies in economic aspects or legal developments or whether they are more concerned by certain production rights or by certain features of their own organisation The goal of the book is to enable the reader to grasp the special features and the significance of the forces which have shaped the current income support instruments for producers in the various Member States of the EU and which will unquestionably continue to influence the measures which flow from reforms to the Common Agricultural Policy in the years to come

The Economics of European Agriculture Bernadette Andreosso-O'Callaghan, 2003-09-08 The Economics of European Agriculture explains the demand and supply characteristics of agricultural markets as well as government intervention in agriculture with an emphasis on the Common Agricultural Policy CAP Bernadette Andreosso O'Callaghan also analyses the fifth enlargement and its implications for agriculture in Europe technology and innovation and agricultural trade liberalization

Prehistoric Farming in Europe Graeme Barker, 1985-07-11 Drawing upon his own extensive knowledge of European archaeology Graeme Barker has impressively integrated the full range of archaeological data to produce in this book a masterly account of prehistoric farming in Europe on a unique scale He makes use of modern archaeological techniques to reconstruct the lives of prehistoric farmers in remarkable detail Not only do we now have a vivid picture of the prehistoric farmyard but we know what animals were kept how they were fed and why they were bred Evidence for crops grown and techniques of cultivation and husbandry helps recreate the prehistoric landscape Even the social organisation that determined the use of resources and provided the crucial stimulus for agricultural change can be relived Graeme Barker develops his argument through analogies with the agricultural history of classical and medieval Europe and concludes that today's industrial farmers can learn much from the successes and failures of early European farming

New Limits on European Agriculture François Duchêne, Edward Szczepanik, Wilfrid Legg, 2023-07-26 Until about 1970 Western Europe was regarded as the great food importing region of the world Over the next 15 years it also became a major food exporter This study originally published in 1985 analyses the expansionary policies of individual nations as well as those of the Community itself which have helped produce this momentous reversal of Western Europe's traditional role The phenomenon in the international food market is reviewed within the context of the economic and political forces responsible for changes in Western European agriculture during the late 20th Century

Socioeconomic and Environmental Impacts on Agriculture in the New Europe Serban Scriciu, 2011-03-13 This book looks at agriculture and the environment placed within the dynamic context of post communist societal change and entry into the European Union EU Scriciu explores developments in eleven Central and Eastern European CEE countries and argues for agriculture's natural place in these societies The history of these countries is significant in how it has shaped the institutions and influenced the outcomes In many cases during communism agriculture was not considered a strategic priority An ecological consciousness did not figure high on the agendas of authoritarian regimes After 1990 some post communist farm economies progressed slower than others and environmental pressures mostly diminished with agricultural restructuring In parts of CEE increases in numbers of low input small farms have resulted in some though largely unintended ecological benefits A dual environmental challenge has nevertheless surfaced On one hand environmentally unsustainable practices have been attributed to some low input farming

On the other hand risks of farm over intensification and resource overexploitation are on the rise Also environmental regulatory and institutional frameworks are not always effectively in place EU membership is not creating the anticipated benefits for farm growth There are a number of systemic structural barriers preventing many farmers from drawing on Common Agricultural Policy incentives and support The presence of many vulnerable poor farms is clearly problematic particularly economically However small scale farms could be made more acceptable and profitable by ensuring EU policies acknowledge their value and by building institutions to support alternative farm growth strategies aside from the traditional European model of individual corporate farm expansion The voluntary uptake of grassroots rural cooperation and farm associations may represent such an alternative Future European farm policy reforms need to reach the small and vulnerable and better tackle issues of farm equity poverty and agricultural sustainability in the new Europe This is a timely contribution as this type of transition has just begun This book should be of use to students and researchers looking at agricultural and environmental economics post communist rural societal change European integration and the Common Agricultural Policy
