The First Assessment Research In Geographic Education:

The First Assessment Richard G. Boehm, James F. Petersen, 1997 Assessment in Geographical Education: An International Perspective Theresa Bourke, Reece Mills, Rod Lane, 2022-02-27 In recent years there has been increased attention paid to the importance of assessment in Geographical Education the chosen subject for this book Assessment is an important tool for collecting information about student learning and for providing timely data to inform key stakeholders including students teachers parents and policymakers To be effective assessment needs to be valid reliable and fair Validity is about ensuring that we assess what we claim we are assessing Reliability is about measuring performance and understanding in a consistent way Without validity and reliability assessment is unlikely to provide equitable opportunities for students to demonstrate what they know and can do As geography educators it is therefore important that we identify the core concepts and skills in geography that we want students to master We need a clear understanding of what the progression of learning looks like for each concept and skill so we can develop fit for purpose assessments that track and improve student learning While there is a substantial literature on evidence based assessment in secondary school contexts research exploring best practice assessment in geography is rare This is a concern given the distinctive nature of geography and the important role of assessment in the learning process This scholarly collection seeks to address this issue by connecting research in educational assessment with the domain of geography The chapters are written by leading researchers in Geographical Education from across the globe These chapters provide examples of innovation through the collective voices of geography teacher educator scholars from across Australia USA South Korea Germany Switzerland and Singapore What unifies the work in this book is that each chapter focuses on a key feature of the discipline of geography providing scholarly examples of evidence based practices for assessing student s knowledge and skills Research in Geographic Education ,2005 International Handbook on Geographical Education Rod Gerber, 2013-03-09 I am very pleased to have been asked by Rod Gerber to provide a preface to such a book Not least because of the twenty four chapters eight are written by former students or colleagues with whom I have worked in the past and whom I still meet at conferences on geographical education It is with a certain pride and joy that I note the progress which has been made in geographical education both in its day to day teaching and in research in the twenty years following the end of my term of office as Chair of the Commission on Geographical Education of the International Geographical Union CGEIUG My successors Joe Stoltman Hartwig Haubrich Rod Gerber and now Lea Houtsonen have done much and are continuing to work hard to foster the development of geographical education This book is proof if proof were needed that the international collaboration in this field is alive and well with contributions coming from all the continents except Antarctica It would be a moribund subject that remained unaffected in one way or another by developments on the great world stage as Fairgrieve 1926 would have put it And as Rod Gerber shows the issues of globalisation of cultural encounters of differing value systems of new technologies of variable economic development and of environmental quality all feature as topics which influence and are influenced by geographical education Handbook of Research in Social Studies Education Linda S. Levstik, Cynthia A.

Tyson, 2010-04-15 This Handbook outlines the current state of research in social studies education a complex dynamic challenging field with competing perspectives about appropriate goals and on going conflict over the content of the curriculum Equally important it encourages new research in order to advance the field and foster civic competence long maintained by advocates for the social studies as a fundamental goal In considering how to organize the Handbook the editors searched out definitions of social studies statements of purpose and themes that linked or divided theory research and practices and established criteria for topics to include Each chapter meets one or more of these criteria research activity since the last Handbook that warrants a new analysis topics representing a major emphasis in the NCSS standards and topics reflecting an emerging or reemerging field within the social studies The volume is organized around seven themes Change and Continuity in Social Studies Civic Competence in Pluralist Democracies Social Justice and the Social Studies Assessment and Accountability Teaching and Learning in the Disciplines Information Ecologies Technology in the Social Studies Teacher Preparation and Development The Handbook of Research in Social Studies is a must have resource for all beginning and experienced researchers in the field Learning and Teaching with Maps Patrick Wiegand, 2006-01-31 A comprehensive and authoritative account of how primary school children and teachers can use maps to enhance learning and deepen understanding of this essential skill It includes all aspects of map use such as reading and interpreting maps and using maps to find the way covering maps of all scales including globes and atlases The text is extensively illustrated with examples including maps made by children themselves using conventional materials as well as computer software A particular feature of the book is the integration of digital and conventional mapping and Internet and CD ROM cartography together with simple applications of Geographic Information Systems GIS appropriate to the needs of children right through primary and secondary education This book will be of great use to all primary teachers and subject teachers in secondary school as well as non specialist geography teachers and will enable children to use all types of maps in new compelling and thoughtful ways
