Soviet National Income And Product In 1937:

Soviet National Income and Product in 1937 Abram Bergson, 1953 Applies a novel methodology of national income calculation that has been applied to numerous Western countries to the Soviet Union involving the calculation of national income as the end product of a series of interrelated sector and global accounts of incomes and their disposition Soviet National Income and Product in 1937 Abram Bergson, 1933 USSR-measures of Economic Growth and Development, 1950-80, 1982 National Income and Wealth in the U.S. and in Many Countries Abroad United States. Department of the Treasury. Library, 1950 Measuring National Income in the Centrally Planned Economies William Jefferies, 2014-11-27 In 1991 Communism collapsed The cold war was over and the West had won Whole cities Moscow St Petersburg Warsaw Beijing Budapest and Bucharest whole countries indeed were privatised for nothing or next to nothing This was probably the greatest expansion of the world market in history And yet according to national income measurements of the CIA OECD World Bank and IMF this gigantic expansion of market production led to a decline in market production in the very countries where it was introduced How to explain this paradox This book traces the origin of the West's national income measurements from their origin in the 1923 4 Balance developed in the USSR to the USA in the early 1930s via two Soviet exiles Simon Kuznets and Wassily Leontief and then back to the USSR again after a vigorous debate through a protégé of Kuznets Abram Bergson The AFC imputed national incomes to a centrally planned economy based on physical not income measurements This book provides a detailed assessment of the failure of the AFC method to measure the real growth of actual market production during the transition period This book provides a detailed account of the application of national income measurements to the centrally planned economies It assesses all of the major contributors to this debate including Colin Clark Naum Jasny Alexander Gerschenkron G Warren Nutter and Abram Bergson It provides a new much higher estimate of the expansion of market production during the transition period based on an estimate of the actual growth of real market production It discusses the very significant implications of this re estimate for contemporary theories of globalisation

Problems of Communism, 1952 Demonizing the Other Robert S. Wistrich, 2013-03-07 At the close of the twentieth century the stereotyping and demonization of others whether on religious nationalist racist or political grounds has become a burning issue Yet comparatively little attention has been paid to how and why we fabricate images of the other as an enemy or demon to be destroyed This innovative book fills that gap through an interdisciplinary cross cultural approach that brings together a distinguished array of historians anthropologists psychologists literary critics and feminists The historical sweep covers Greco Roman Antiquity the Middle Ages and the Modern Era Antisemitism receives special attention because of its longevity and centrality to the Holocaust but it is analyzed here within the much broader framework of racism and xenophobia The plurality of viewpoints expressed in this volume provide fascinating insights into what is common and what is unique to the many varieties of prejudice stereotyping demonization and hatred Economy of the Chinese Mainland

Ta-chung Liu, Kung-chia Yeh, 2015-12-08 A picture of a relentless drive for industrialization at the expense of living standards is presented in this authoritative comparison of the economic development of China in the Communist and pre Communist periods. The authors have made a quantitative analysis of the economy of the Chinese mainland from 1952 to 1959 and related it to accounts for 1933. Their interpretation differs dramatically from official Communist statements and their findings cast serious doubt on Communist claims for annual increases in national income. For 1958, for instance, the official figure for the rate of increase was 34 per cent but the true rate was probably nearer to 14 per cent. The Kremlin Strikes Back Steven Rosefielde, 2016-12-15 America and Europe responded to Russia's annexation of Crimea on March 18, 2014, by discarding their policy of East West partnership and reverting intermittently to a policy of cold war. The West believes that this on again off again second Cold War will end with Russia's capitulation because it is not a sufficiently great power while the Kremlin's view is just the opposite. Vladimir Putin believes that if Moscow has strategic patience, Russia can recover some of the geostrategic losses that it incurred when the Soviet Union collapsed. The Kremlin Strikes Back scrutinizes the economic prospects of both sides, including factors like military industrial prowess, warfighting capabilities, and national resolve, addressing particularly hot button issues such as increasing military spending, decreasing domestic spending, and other policies. Stephen Rosefielde aims to objectively gauge future prospects and the wisdom of employing various strategies to address Russian developments.

Economic Development of Communist China Choh-Ming Li, 2023-11-15 Economic Development of Communist China: An Appraisal of the First Five Years of Industrialization analyzes the rapid economic transformation in China between 1952 and 1957 under the First Five Year Plan. Drawing from Chinese language sources, the study focuses on the development of heavy industries like steel, with production rising from 1.35 million tons in 1952 to 5.24 million tons by 1957. Soviet aid played a pivotal role, contributing to the construction of 156 industrial projects, including those in mining, energy, and machinery. The overarching goal was to establish a socialist society through industrialization, with heavy industry being prioritized over consumer welfare. The plan set ambitious targets, including surpassing the United Kingdom in steel production by 1972, though it acknowledged the secondary importance of consumer goods. While the industrial progress was notable, the study critiques the uneven development, particularly in agriculture. Despite the rapid industrial growth, agricultural investment remained disproportionately low compared to the focus on industrial sectors. The government's approach to socialization, including collectivization and price control, faced challenges in its execution. Although some sectors like industry and trade were effectively socialized by 1956 agriculture and other private sectors remained slower to fully transform The study highlights the complexities of the socialist transition questioning the sustainability of such rapid industrialization and its broader economic implications It underscores the critical role of state control Soviet assistance and planned economic strategies in shaping China's industrial trajectory This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1959      The Economics of World War II Mark
