Tanks of the USSR, 1917-1945 Alexander Ludeke,2017-11-30 The Soviet Union had already begun building an armored industry as early as the 1920s Although initially limited to reconstructing and developing Western European armored vehicles an independent line of powerful and easy to produce models had been established by 1939 Even after the Second World War the USSR expanded its armament force considerably even planning to cross western Europe in a massive armoured wave in the event of any conflict with NATO In this book Alexander Ldeke looks at all the important Soviet tanks that were built from 1917 up until the end of the Second World War Cold War Armoured Fighting Vehicles of the Soviet Union Source Wikipedia,2013-09 Please note that the content of this book primarily consists of articles available from Wikipedia or other free sources online Pages 70 Chapters ASU 57 ASU 85 BMP 1 BMP 1 variants BMP 2 BMP 3 BMP development BTR 152 BTR 40 BTR 50 BTR 60 BTR 70 BTR D BTR vehicle MT 55 Excerpt The BTR 60 is the first vehicle in a series of Soviet eight wheeled armoured personnel carriers APCs It was developed in the late 1950s as a replacement for the

BTR 152 and was seen first time in public in 1961 BTR stands for Bronetransporter literally armoured transporter The BTR 152 and BTR 40 the first two Soviet mass produced APCs developed after the Second World War gave the Soviet Army useful experience with wheeled armoured personnel carriers However even as they were designed they weren't suited for the needs of the Soviet Army as they lacked a roof which was added in later versions designated BTR 152K and BTR 40B respectively The low combat value of BTR 152 and BTR 40 was exposed during the Suez Crisis when the Egyptian Army used them This was one of the reasons for which the new APC was developed Between 1956 and 1957 a decision was made to convert all rifle and mechanized divisions into new motor rifle divisions and a requirement for a new vehicle was drawn up ZiL 153 at the Kubinka Tank Museum Development proceeded along two paths a more expensive vehicle that would eventually become the BMP 1 for use in tank divisions and a cheaper vehicle for use in motor rifle divisions that would eventually become the BTR 60 Two design bureaus were given the requirements GAZ led by V A Dedkov and ZiL led by Rodionov and Orlov The requirements stated the vehicle should have all wheel drive at least two turnable axles independent suspension as well as mobility and fording capabilities allowing it to operate alongside tanks The vehicle was also supposed to be amphibious GAZ design team started to work

Soviet Cold War Weaponry Anthony Tucker-Jones, 2015-05-20 The T 54 T 62 and T 72 main battle tanks along with the personnel carriers assault guns self propelled guns and anti tank missiles that are illustrated in this photographic history represent the high point in the design and manufacture of armoured vehicles by the Soviet Union during the Cold War Although the superpowers never came to blows the Cold War was far from cold as numerous hot proxy wars were fought in Africa and the Middle East and these conflicts employed the Soviet weaponry that is shown in action in the colour and black and white photographs selected for this book Between the 1950s and 1980s Soviet and Warsaw Pact countries produced thousands of tanks and armoured vehicles ready for the Third World War They embarked on a technological arms race with the NATO allies in an attempt to counter each new piece of equipment as it appeared in service Much of this Soviet weaponry has achieved almost iconic status and despite its age remains in service with armies guerrilla forces and terrorist organizations around the world today It is also of enduring interest to collectors re enactors and modellers who are fascinated by the military equipment of the late twentieth century

Red Army Auxiliary Armoured Vehicles, 1930-1945 Alexey Tarasov, 2021-08-30 During the 1930s in the Soviet Union a remarkable range of auxiliary armoured vehicles were produced for the Red Army which have rarely had the attention they deserve and Alexey Tarasov's photographic history is the ideal guide to them These innovative designs demonstrate the diversity and innovation of the Soviet arms industry Among them were armoured flails ambulances bridge layers flame throwers and amphibious cars which prefigure similar designs made by western engineers during the Second World War As this selection of rare photographs shows Soviet designers were in many ways ahead of their time and it was short sighted internal policy and the shortcomings of Soviet industry which led to the cancellation or postponement of many of these promising projects As a result when faced with Operation Barbarossa in 1941 the Red Army lacked the auxiliary armour that would have helped to stem the German advance Alexey Tarasov s in depth research and the rare photographs he has assembled give a fascinating insight into a little known aspect of the history of Soviet armoured vehicles
