Soo,2012-12-06 The year 1979 ushered in a new phase in China's long and continuous revolution Currently this new phase is being symbolically referred to by the Chinese leaders themselves as the New Long March a continuation of the legendary and historical Long March in terms of modernization which comprises the Four Modernizations Agriculture Industry Science and Technology and Military Defense Such an all encompassing attempt at modernization may appear to some at least to be something new or may indicate a radical shift in her policy But upon closer examination this decision seems only to reflect an historical continuity in terms of the two major long term goals of the Chinese Revolution national independence and modernization or industrialization The former would make China strong the latter wealthy For ever since the Opium War in 1840 and throughout the Revolutions of 1911 and 1949 China has always pursued these two revolutionary goals though with different emphases at different times This has been especially true during the past three decades as this twofold goal has dictated all of China's important policies both domestic and foreign In other words while the concrete policies may have appeared to be lacking in unity at times they have been formulated with the specific intent of achieving national independence and modernization From this perspective the New Long March marks the passage of post Mao China beyond the transition of succession toward the continued pursuit of the same revolutionary goals Marx and Public Services

Tony Kinder, 2025-04-10 By evaluating previous public management research through Marxist concepts this textbook offers innovative solutions to public service problems It updates Marx's framework to reflect the growth of public services transitioning from abstract state notions to concrete service analysis Addressing two critical gaps the book highlights the benefits of a Marxist approach to public services and presents Marxist ideas to examine these services at a micro level It demonstrates the relevance of Marxist frameworks for public service professionals critically reviews current public management knowledge and sheds light on the dynamic nature of public services against the background of neoliberalism While doing so the book goes beyond a Eurocentric perspective providing cases and practical examples from developed and developing countries with an additional focus on Asian practices Written by an award winning author with years of practical experience and designed for graduate and advanced undergraduate students each chapter sets clear learning objectives and reviews existing tools and frameworks The chapters also present new ways of improving public services encouraging readers to apply Marxist concepts to their contexts and cultures This will also make this book a practical resource for practitioners and professionals seeking to resolve their grounded public services issues
