Farid Gamgami, 2025-02-10 The objective of this textbook is to provide a synopsis of propulsion technologies in the context of spaceship design The author identified a lack of multidisciplinary textbooks that explain to students both the technology and physics of space propulsion as well as its relationship to other disciplines in the process of spaceship design To make the subject more tangible the propulsion demanding context of space exploration was chosen The book therefore begins with the astronomical context relevant to human exploration of the solar system This challenging endeavour requires powerful space propulsion systems of various types Existing and emerging technologies are systematically discussed Principle similarities and technological analogies between the different types are highlighted Starting from the physical working principle the book progressively extends the view to subsystem and system design aspects This approach recognises that the propulsion subsystem is the most defining architectural element of large spacecraft i e starships Such a comprehensive presentation of propulsion technology from a system perspective is not yet reflected in the existing literature In order to apply the fundamental knowledge provided in the first 9 chapters a mission to the dwarf planet Ceres is presented where different propulsion technologies have to be combined to achieve the mission objectives In this way the reader is introduced to the basics of requirements breakdown design space analysis and the technical trade off process all of which are essential for early mission planning The book is aimed at advanced undergraduate and graduate students recent postgraduates and newcomers to the field of spacecraft design where propulsion is essential
