Sparrows Point Making Steel The Rise And Ruin Of American Industrial Might:

Making Steel Mark Reutter,2004 Making Steel chronicles the rise and fall of American steel by focusing on the fateful decisions made at the world's once largest steel mill at Sparrows Point Maryland Mark Reutter examines the business production and daily lives of workers as corporate leaders became more interested in their own security and enrichment than in employees community or innovative technology This edition features 26 pages of photos an author's preface and a new chapter on the devastating effects of Bethlehem Steel's bankruptcy titled The Discarded American Worker Sparrows

Point Mark Reutter,1989 The United States and Latin America Fredrick B. Pike,2010-07-05 The lazy greaser asleep under a sombrero and the avaricious gringo with money stuffed pockets are only two of the negative stereotypes that North Americans and Latin Americans have cherished during several centuries of mutual misunderstanding This unique study probes the origins of these stereotypes and myths and explores how they have shaped North American impressions of Latin America from the time of the Pilgrims up to the end of the twentieth century Fredrick Pike's central thesis is that North Americans have identified themselves with civilization in all its manifestations while viewing Latin Americans as hopelessly trapped in primitivism the victims of nature rather than its masters He shows how this civilization nature duality arose from the first European settlers perception that nature and everything identified with it including American Indians African slaves all women and all children was something to be conquered and dominated This myth eventually came to color the North American establishment view of both immigrants to the United States and all our neighbors to the south Changing

Representations of Nature and the City Gabriel N. Gee,Alison Vogelaar,2018-07-04 The turn of the 1960s 70s characterized by the rapid acceleration of globalization prompted a radical transformation in the perception of urban and natural environments The urban revolution and related prospect of the total urbanisation of the planet in concert with rapid population growth and resource exploitation instigated a surge in environmental awareness and activism One implication of this moment is a growing recognition of the integration and interconnection of natural and urban entities The present collection is an interdisciplinary inquiry into the changing modes of representation of nature in the city beginning from the turn of the 1960s 70s Bringing together a number of different disciplinary approaches including architectural studies and aesthetics heritage studies and economics environmental science and communication the collection reflects upon the changing perception of socio natures in the context of increasing urban expansion and global interconnectedness as they are were manifest in specific representations Using cases studies from around the globe the collection offers a historical and theoretical understanding of a paradigmatic shift whose material and symbolic legacies are still accompanying us in the early 21st century The Way of the Ship Alex Roland,W. Jeffrey Bolster,Alexander Keyssar,2008 The Way of the Ship offers a global perspective and considers both oceanic shipping and domestic shipping along America's coasts and inland waterways with explanations of the forces that influenced the way of the ship The result is an eye opening authoritative look at American

Berger,2021-10-15 For decades civil rights activists fought against employment discrimination and for a greater role for African Americans in municipal decision making As their influence in city halls across the country increased activists took advantage of the Great Society and the government jobs it created on the local level to advance their goals A New Working Class traces efforts by Black public sector workers and their unions to fight for racial and economic justice in Baltimore The public sector became a critical job niche for Black workers especially women a largely unheralded achievement of the civil rights movement A vocal contingent of Black public sector workers pursued the activists goals from their government posts and sought to increase and improve public services They also fought for their rights as workers and won union representation During an era often associated with deindustrialization and union decline Black government workers and their unions were just getting started During the 1970s and 1980s presidents from both political parties pursued policies that imperiled these gains Fighting funding reductions public sector workers and their unions defended the principle that the government has a responsibility to provide for the well being of its residents Federal officials justified their austerity policies the weakening of the welfare state and strengthening of the carceral state by criminalizing Black urban residents including government workers and their unions Meanwhile workers and their unions also faced off against predominately white local officials who responded to austerity pressures by cutting government jobs and services while simultaneously offering tax incentives to businesses and investing in low wage service sector jobs The combination of federal and local policies increased insecurity in hyper segregated and increasingly over policed low income Black neighborhoods leaving residents particularly women to provide themselves or do without services that public sector workers had fought to provide
