Murayama, Manjula Ranagalage, Matamyo Simwanda, 2021-12-27 Over the last two decades many researchers have focused on developing countries urbanization patterns and processes In this context the scarcity of spatial data has been an obstacle to studying urbanization quantitatively especially in Asian and African cities The use of remote sensing data and geographical information systems GIS techniques can overcome the above limitations Data on land use and land cover land surface temperature population density and energy consumption can be extracted based on remote sensing at various spatial and temporal resolutions GIS techniques can be used to analyze urbanization patterns and predict future patterns Thus the link between urbanization and sustainable urban development has increasingly become a principal issue in designing and developing sustainable cities at the local regional and global levels This volume shows the spatiotemporal analysis of urbanization using GIS and remote sensing in developing countries with a special emphasis on future urban sustainability in Asia and Africa Capturing the spatial temporal variation of urbanization patterns will help introduce proper sustainable urban planning in developing countries especially for Asian and African cities An Encyclopaedia in Spatio-Temporal Dimensions Patit Paban Mishra, 2024-10-20 The encyclopaedia highlights the South Asian country of India with its varied ramifications As a rich country with all its diversity it has played a significant role in world affairs for more than two thousand years India is the most populous country in the world and its economy is growing rapidly It is marching ahead in science and technology In the hundredth anniversary of its independence in 2047 it aspires to become a developed nation One should be aware of this country in this globalized world It is not only fascinating but also knowledge enhancing The encyclopaedia holds importance due to several reasons information on a vast range of subjects scientific methodology accuracy and reliability It could be used as a starting point for further research The book will be useful for general readers serious researchers graduate students and academics Spatial Modeling and Assessment of Urban Form Biswajeet Pradhan, 2017-05-08 This book discusses the application of Geospatial data Geographic Information System GIS and Remote Sensing RS technologies in analysis and modeling of urban growth process and its pattern with special focus on sprawl and compact form of urban development The book explains these two kinds of urban forms sprawl and compact urban development in detail regarding their advantages disadvantages indicators assessment modeling implementation and their relationship with urban sustainability It confirms that the proposed modeling approaches geospatial data and GIS are very practical for identifying urban growth land use change patterns and their general trends in future The analyses and modeling approaches presented in this book can be employed to guide the identification and measurements of the changes and growth likely to happen in urban areas In addition this book can be helpful for town planning and development in order to design

urban areas in a compact form and eventually sustainable manner

Emergent Spatio-temporal Dimensions of the City Fabian Neuhaus, 2016-10-14 This book focuses on the creation of space as an activity The argument draws not only on aspects of movement in time but also on a cultural and specifically social context influencing the creation of the spatial habitus The book reconsiders existing theories of time and space in the field of urban planning and develops an updated account of spatial activity experience and space making Recent developments in spatial practice specifically related to new technologies make this an important and timely task Integrating spatial temporal dynamics into the way we think about cities aids the implementation of sustainable forms of urban planning The study is composed of two different case studies One case is based on fieldwork tracking individual movement using GPS the other case utilises data mined from Twitter One of the key elements in the conclusion to this book is the definition of temporality as a status rather than a transition It is argued that through repetitive practices as habitus time has presence and agency in our everyday lives This book is based on the work undertaken for a PhD at the Centre for Advanced Spatial Analysis and was accepted as thesis by University College London in 2013

Advancements in Urban Environmental Studies Atiqur Rahman, Shouraseni Sen

Roy, Swapan Talukdar, Shahfahad, 2023-03-03 According to UN estimates approximately nearly half of the world's population now lives in cities and that figure is expected to rise to almost 70% by 2050 Cities now account for around 70% of worldwide greenhouse gas emissions and this percentage is predicted to rise in the near future as a result of projected increases in global urbanization patterns It is widely acknowledged that irrational urban planning and design can increase emissions while also exacerbating threats and risks resulting in a slew of environmental issues such as urban heat islands, air pollution, flooding amongst other issues as well as environmental, social and economic losses Therefore these concerns must be addressed promptly in order to cope up with these rising difficulties and make urban environments safer for residents With the advancement of remote sensing technology and the use of current remote observation systems, urban data science, remote sensing and artificial intelligence (AI) modeling and quantifying emergent difficulties in urban regions and urban systems have become easy They aid in the quantitative analysis of urban shape, functions and human behavior in cities Harvesting data, developing models and suggesting new methodologies will be aided by combining urban ecology with new breakthroughs in data science This book is of great value to a diverse group of academicians, scientists, students, environmentalists, meteorologists, urban planners, remote sensing and GIS experts with a common interest in geospatial sciences within the earth, environmental sciences as well as human and social sciences
