Temperature Applications Balzej T. Skoczen, 2013-03-09 The present monograph is mainly focused on the behaviour of ductile materials at cryogenic temperatures stability issues concerning application of corrugated shells at cryogenic conditions and reliability oriented parametric optimisation of compensation systems containing the corrugated bellows As there are relatively few publications on combined material and structural behaviour at very low temperatures the monograph aims at filling this gap It is worth pointing out that within the class of publications dedicated to low temperature behaviour of materials and structures the majority is based on testing down to the temperature of liquid nitrogen 77 K Rare publications deal with the analysis of material and structural response at the temperature of liquid helium 4.5 K or superfluid helium below the point T₂ 1.7 K This can be explained by the fact that an by its nature complex installation for testing at such low temperatures is very expensive Only the large research centres and universities working in the domain of superconductivity cryogenics or developing superconducting magnets for particle accelerators can afford such installations A significant part of the present monograph is dedicated to the analysis of the phenomena associated with plastic yielding in stainless steels at cryogenic temperatures Generally three phenomena are distinguished plastic strain induced phase transformations serrated yielding and evolution of ductile damage Automotive Industries, the Automobile, 1919 Journal of Research of the National Bureau of Standards United States.
